16.7 LAKH INDIANS DIED IN 2019 DUE TO AIR POLLUTION: STUDY

Outdoor and household particulate matter pollution contributed to the death of 1.16 lakh infants in the first month of their life

CAUSES STROKE, HEART ATTACK, LUNG CANCER

More than half of these deaths were associated with outdoor PM2.5 and others were linked to the use of solid fuels such as charcoal, wood, and animal dung for cooking. Long-term exposure to outdoor and household air pollution contributed to deaths from stroke, heart attack, diabetes, lung cancer, chronic lung diseases and neonatal diseases, the report said

LARGEST RISK FACTOR FOR DEATH

- The new analysis reported in the State of Global Air this year says air pollution is now the largest risk factor for death
- Particulate air pollution exposure during pregnancy is linked to low birth weight and pre-term birth, which can trigger serious complications that may lead to death

PM will meet 15 funding agencies

Foreign investors look up to India for stable returns, to tap long-term opportunities here

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ New Delhi

PRIME Minister Narendra will soon meet 15 leading global fund houses which are keen to invest in India, Tarun Bajaj, secretary, Department of Economic Affairs (DEA), said on Wednesday.

"Fund houses from all over the world are in touch with us and want us to provide good assets with stable returns," Bajaj said while addressing a virtual event organised by the Confederation of Indian Industry.

The decision follows conversations between funds and the Indian government on long-term investment opportunities here. The announcement also comes on a day when RBI governor Shaktikanta Das said India is at the cusp of an economic recovery.

Bajaj, however, did not reveal names of the funds which would be meeting the PM.

The DEA secretary added that the government was looking at channelising domestic savings and domestic assets.

"There is a lot of capital available in the country and now it's increasing unlike 10 years ago, when money was not available. For instance, the government is in talks with regulators to tinker rules to allow Employees Provident Fund to put money in the infra sector," the official said.

He also revealed that the Union Cabinet will soon consider a new public sector enterprises policy, which will allow for the privatisation of the public sector enterprises. "It is an open secret, but till it gets the stamp of the Cabinet we are not satisfied. It should happen very soon," Bajaj said, adding monetisation of assets is a focus area of the government and that it is getting a lot of traction.

He said the government has been able to privatise six airports, and now the Airports Authority of India and the Ministry of Civil Aviation are ready with six more airports.

GOVT OPEN TO MORE STIMULUS

CM takes stock of flood damage

AS the water level in the swollen Bhima river, which has caused extensive damage to standing crop and properties, began to recede, Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa on Wednesday surveyed the devastation caused in the North Karnataka districts during an aerial survey.

The situation remains grim as around six lakh cusecs of water is being released into the Bhima river from dams in Maharashtra, and the Army, NDRF, SDRF personnel and the local administration have been directed to be on high alert. During the survey of flood-hit areas in Kalaburgi, Bidar and Raichur in an Indian Air Force helicopter, the CM witnessed the damage to standing crops and properties. Due to bad weather conditions, he had to cancel his plans to take stock of the situation in other parts of Kalaburgi and also visit to Vijayapura.

After his marathon meetings for over three hours with senior officers from the flood-hit districts at Kalaburgi airport, the CM said he cannot announce any fresh compensation due to the Model Code of Conduct in force for the legislative council and bypolls to assembly segments on November 3. He, however, directed the officials to take up relief works as per NDRF and SDRF norms, to ensure adequate supply of food and medicines in relief camps, and prevent outbreak of communicable diseases. Jnana Bharathi gangrape: HC upholds life term for 7

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

THE Karnataka High Court on Wednesday confirmed the life sentence awarded by a trial court to seven people involved in the gangrape of a law student on the Jnana Bharathi campus in the city in October 2012.

A division bench of Justice B Veerappa and Justice K Natarajan upheld the order passed by the trial court in September 2013 and 2017, sentencing the accused to life imprisonment, and dismissed their appeals. The convicted are Ramu, Shivanna, Maddura, Eleyaiah aka Eleya, Eeraiah, Ramu and Dodda Eeraiah aka Doddeera, residents of Metaridoddi in Ramanagara taluk.

Additional State Public Prosecutor Vijay Kumar Majage said the victim, a native of Nepal, supported the case fully by identifying the accused during the Test Identification Parade and deposed each and every overt act of the culprits before the court, which helped the prosecution to prove the case beyond doubt. Govt relaxes onion import norms, to offload more stock

@ New Delhi/Mumbai

WITH onion prices going north because of heavy rains damaging standing crops in Maharashtra and Karnataka, the Centre on Wednesday announced easing of its import norms till December 15.

India is already importing onions from Egypt and Iran. While Maharashtra's popular Lasalgaon variety of big onions fetches a retail price of ₹90-100 per kg, the Egypt and Iran consignments come at half the cost — ₹40-50. The downside is the imported varieties aren't as hot on the palate as the Indian ones.

The Consumer Affairs Ministry said it will offload more onion from its buffer stock into the open market to contain the price rise. An estimated kharif crop of 37 lakh tonnes is likely to start arriving in the mandis and soften prices, it added.

The ministry said, "The government has relaxed the conditions for fumigation and additional declaration on Phytosanitary Certificate (PSC) under the Plant Quarantine Order (PQ), 2003 for import up to December 15, 2020."

Rainfall Data for October 21

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

IT'S the same old story every time it rains heavily in Bengaluru — flash floods, stranded people and inundated houses and roads. What has also perhaps not changed is the administration's preparedness to handle such situations.

After the record rain on Tuesday night, citizens who spent hours draining water out of their homes and were left stranded on the roads vented their ire. "Water gushed into homes and we have lost link with the city, but all that the officials said is that we will be given essentials. The lockdown could have been used to complete utility works, clear silt from drains, and repair roads. Every year, the BBMP officials promise to resolve matters, but they work only when courts pull them up," Sidaramappa of RR Nagar said.

The BBMP control room, got complaints of three tree fall cases. Water-logging was reported on Mysuru Road, Kino Theatre, Shivananda Circle, Ravindranath Circle, Tagore Circle, Hosakerehalli, Palace Road, Lalbagh Road, in Jayanagar and surrounding areas. The retaining wall of the storm water drain in Gurudutta Layout in RR Nagar ward also collapsed. BBMP officials have evacuated eight families and shifted them till the work is completed.

Visiting affected areas with BBMP Commissioner N Manjunatha Prasad, DyCM Dr C N Ashwath Narayan said, "Some parts of Bengaluru, like RR Nagar received 75-150 mm rain (KSNDMC data), which led to the SWD wall collapse. Also, in some areas incidents are reported because the drains are not able to handle the rise in water levels. It is important for BBMP to create recharge pits to absorb rainwater.

"Remodelling 400km of 842km of SWDs has been done. The BWSSB should undertake rainwater harvesting. There should be regular desilting," he said. Civil works had halted due to Covid, but will resume from November, he added.

Prasad said the BWSSB is also working on laying underground drainage and drinking water lines in the 110 villages, CMC and TMC areas.

VOICING A CONCERN

Time not ripe yet to reopen schools, paediatricians to CM

RANJANI MADHAVAN @ Bengaluru

CITING the high number of Covid-19 cases, and rapid spread of the illness in closed environments like classrooms, the Indian Academy of Paediatrics (IAP), Karnataka chapter, has urged the State government not to reopen educational institutions anytime soon.

In a recent letter to Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa, the association said the time is not yet ripe for reopening of schools and colleges. Such a move in the US and Korea has led to a huge rise in community infections, they said.

"In the interest of the health of children and community at large, we urge you to take a decision based on scientific and epidemiological data... (We are) in the process of bringing out a set of recommendations, which shall be shared with you immediately on its release," said the letter signed by Dr Shantharaj A, president, and Dr Natesh B H, secretary of IAP Karnataka. The association has 32,000 members nationwide and 2,600 pediatricians statewide.

Dr Sharath Chand S, vice-president of Bengaluru division, said, "Kids will not be able to follow wearing of masks and social distancing in schools. If one child contracts the virus, the entire family, including parents and grandparents, will be affected. This will create a burden on health infrastructure. Children are fragile and Covid-19 will increase their mortality as well as morbidity, although until now we have fortunately seen most kids remaining asymptomatic, on testing positive."

He urged educational institutions to remain closed for this academic year, or at least till a vaccine is found. There is no guarantee on how long antibodies remain after patients recover. We need to understand this disease well. We will not lose anything by giving up an academic year, Dr Chand added.

President-elect of IAP Karnataka, Dr Ashok R Dastar said the decision to reopen schools must be taken at the district level, based on local and epidemiological data. "If a district does 100 tests a day, and less than five people show up positive, or if there are 20 or fewer cases in a district of 10 lakh population, such a place can consider reopening schools. Teachers and doctors here can take lessons on wearing masks, social distancing and other norms. The decision must be taken in consultation with parents and pediatricians," he said. Children remaining away from schools for 7-8 months has impacted their learning, but at the same time, we must not put them at risk and need to take parents' opinion, he added.

Pre-university syllabus to be cut by 30%

Although classes are yet to start officially, the Department of Pre-University Education has taken steps to reduce the syllabus by 30%, due to "the variation in the annual academic activity this year due to the Covid-19 situation". The move comes after the Centre recommended that the syllabus for Classes 1-12 be reduced by 30%. The board noted that it would reduce the syllabus, similar to the manner in which the Central Board of Secondary Education had done for four subjects – Physics, Chemistry, Maths and Biology. For other subjects, members of the textbook creation and revision committees have already been approached. Various committees have thus far given their reports and recommendations on which verse, prose, chapter and sub-chapter should be cut off. The government is yet to announce the changes. Of 34 subjects offered in Class 11 and 12 state board, all except Carnatic Music will have omissions. Carnatic Music has been kept out of the revision process for the past two years as not a single student had enrolled for it, said Snehal R, director of PU education.

Brace for more rain today, tomorrow across state

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THE weather office has sounded an alert for the entire state over the next two days and has advised people to be cautious as heavy showers are expected in most parts of Karnataka as the South-West monsoon has intensified. The India Meteorological Department (IMD) has also advised the district authorities to evacuate people living in low-lying and vulnerable areas to safer locations.

A low-pressure area over the central parts of the Bay of Bengal is likely to concentrate into a depression by Thursday and into a deep depression on Friday, said IMD director in-charge C S Patil. A trough over peninsular India at a 15 degree latitude is likely to cause heavy rainfall over coastal and north-interior Karnataka.

The formation of these weather systems has prolonged the South-West monsoon as a result of which the onset of the North-East monsoon has been delayed, Patil said. This means that most of parts of Karnataka will experience rain in October and November, as the state experiences North-East monsoon showers as well.

Patil said that it is unusual for the state to experience such heavy rain in October as the South-West monsoon sets in by early June and retreats by September. Most districts saw excess rainfall as on October 21. Only four districts – Udupi, Chamarajanagar, Kodagu, Mysuru – saw a deficit. The Karnataka received 19.2 mm rainfall up to 8.30 am on October 21 against the normal of 3.4 mm. The seasonal cumulative total is 154.4 mm against the normal of 99.9.

Yeshwantpur stn, Metro to be linked

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

YESHWANTPUR Railway Station and Yeshwantpur Metro Station will soon be connected via a foot over bridge (FOB), benefiting commuters of both transit modes. On Wednesday, an agreement to provide transit integration facilities between the two was signed by Bangalore Metro Rail Corporation and Bengaluru Railway Division.

Yeshwantpur Metro Station was inaugurated on March 1, 2014, but connectivity to the railway station was not provided. Passengers had frequently complained that reaching the station was a challenge.

Two key facilities will be put in place: an 82m foot over bridge that would connect the railway station's existing FOB with the concourse area of the Metro station; a second FOB that runs 230 metres from the first FOB, and connects to the east side of the railway station.

Other infrastructure to be created includes additional road entry to the railway station from the Northwest part of the Metro station, a BMTC bus bay at the Southwest corner abutting Tumakuru-Bengaluru Road, opening of blocked access to the railway station from Tumakuru-Bengaluru Road, an auto stand, pick up and drop points for cars, taxis and autos, multi-storeyed parking for two-wheelers, space for bicycles etc. The facilities would be in place by August 2022, the release said.

22nd October: In English today is named after Thor, the Scandinavian god of thunder. Of course, every language has a different name, but many of them involve powerful, energetic sky gods, and that's one reason why today is generally considered a good time to take the initiative, take command and actually get things done!

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
As the hours pass you may become more and more convinced that something mysterious is going on. At the very least you will realise that there is more to a certain situation than once seemed possible. You may well be ready to tackle awkward issues head on - and good for you.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
From now on, and for the rest of the week, you can afford to be a little more laid back. Wherever possible, introduce a touch of the manyana spirit, and put off as much as you can until tomorrow. Even that might be a little too hurried for some of you!

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
The fact that conditions at work are changing is confusing, but home affairs are still most important. Press ahead with all major schemes; the more outrageous and grandiose they are, the better, at least in theory! Perhaps you should get friends on your side before you really set out to shock.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
There is a great deal to be gained from talking to as many people as possible as much as you can. At the moment, you have no way of judging who is going to come up with the best advice, so go fishing! If you talk to enough people about all your plans, then you might find out who really thinks like you.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
Certain events associated with recent Saturn patterns suggest that you might imagine you are trapped in circumstances not of your making. However, if you do feel 'stuck' emotionally, it may be through a situation which you have engineered, albeit unconsciously. In that case, the solution lies in your hands!

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
You're approaching an important moment of the year, with a turning point in your personal affairs. If you spend as much time as possible on routine matters now, you'll be able to deal with partnerships later on. That's no more than loyal companions deserve.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
Life could become busier as the day progresses. This may be because other people are expecting you to clear up after them. Just watch out that you don't stretch yourself so much that you end up flat on your back. You'll be no use to anyone if your energy reserves plummet.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
If there are any outstanding matters at home, or concerning family relationships, be sure to sort them out as soon as you can, otherwise events may move out of your control. Spare some time for sheer pleasure, though, remembering you were put on this planet to enjoy yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
If you're wondering how home and professional affairs can be reconciled, you're already on the right track! The point is that only when you have asked the right questions, will you be able to find the answers. Besides, it's important that you realise that you don't know it all!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
A change of mood should reassure you about financial questions, even if you don't receive any final answers. There is also much to be said for bringing people together who have been apart for too long. You could play the peace-maker or the match-maker, to great applause.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
Quite simply, if you want to get the best out of a financial deal, you've got to get your facts straight. There's no point in rushing ahead if you've overlooked certain fundamental details. In matters of the heart there is a continuing need to get in touch with loved ones overseas.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
The Moon restores some of your lost confidence. You are bound to be a little more emotional by the time night falls, but then this is a normal state for you! Your long-term business cycle, by the way, is still looking relatively positive. Take advantage of it!

Autopsy shows leathery lungs with blood clots

First postmortem of Covid victim carried out in Bengaluru by forensic expert

BANSY KALAPPA @Bengaluru

FIFTEEN hours after the Covid-infected patient's death, forensic expert Dr Dinesh Rao found no trace of the virus on the skin of the face, neck, or internal organs like the respiratory passage and lungs – the many swabs he took threw up nothing. But an RT-PCR test found the virus lurking in the nose and throat.

Dr Rao, head of forensic medicine in Oxford Medical College, carried out Bengaluru's first autopsy on a 60-year-old male Covid victim, on Wednesday.

He found that the lungs, which are normally like a soft sponge ball, were more like a leather ball. "Lungs normally weigh about 600-700 gm, but this Covid victim's lungs together weighed 2.1kg, and the texture was leathery, not soft and spongy. There were blood clots and it was shocking to see what the virus had done to the lungs, " said Dr Rao. The patient had suffered the infection for more than 14 days.

Studies have shown that the virus strain in India is different from what is seen in Italy or other parts of the world, for example, the way the virus attacks the lungs differs, Dr Rao said. These findings will soon be published in a scientific journal, though a lot more research is needed to understand the disease better and reduce fatality rate, he added.

Asked if relatives could be allowed to touch the victim's body, he said the virus appears to die too, but there is also rampant bacterial infection, and more research is needed in this area.

Having headed forensic medicine in Jamaica for many years, trained in Edinburgh and practised in the UK, Dr Rao said that forensic examination helps study the disease process. A study of internal changes brought about in a human body by plague, malaria, HIV, ebola and other diseases allows doctors to understand it clinically, and treat the patient in a better manner.

Dr Rao, who togged up in a heavy-duty PPE kit with all precautions firmly in place, carried out the autopsy alone, simply because no one was willing to join him in his venture.

Marshals may get cop-like powers to enforce Covid norms

BOSKY KHANNA @Bengaluru

DO not argue or misbehave with marshals, if you are not wearing a mask or are littering city's public spaces. They may soon have police-like powers to book cases against those who argue, misbehave, or even manhandle them.

With rising cases of harassment from unruly citizens not following Covid-19 norms, marshals are now demanding that they be given powers like the police have to file cases against citizens who misbehave and even assault them.

There are many instances where marshals have been ill-treated by violators and have escaped, but have been videographed and shared with police officials and bureaucrats. "We are only doing our duty, telling people to wear masks and penalising them on the spot, as per the state government orders. Nobody hits or misbehaves with a police officer and goes away scot-free. We are also doing similar service and we should also be given similar powers," said a marshal on duty on Mysuru Road, who did not want to be identified.

Marshals crack down on those not wearing masks on Wednesday | NAGARAJA GADEKAL

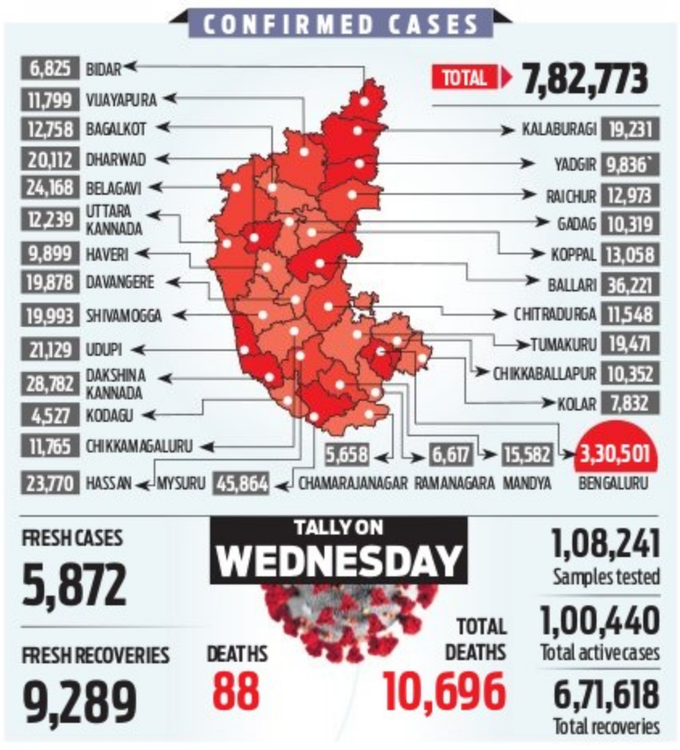
Col Rajbir Singh, chief marshal and head of the Marshals squad in Bengaluru, said the marshals have reported many instances of being ill- treated. There are many video proofs. The government must look into it as the marshals are doing public service."

As per the rules, the marshals have to file a police complaint. But since June, only three complaints have been filed. In most cases, the police are hesitant to file a complaint. All the police do is ask the person to pay the fine and leave. In many cases, the police advise the marshals to be patient.

N Manjunatha Prasad, BBMP Commissioner who is also the Principal Secretary, Disaster Management, Revenue Department, told TNIE: "I have got many videos and feedback that marshals are being ill- treated and humiliated. I am in talks with the Chief Secretary to give them powers to file cases against those who misbehave with them. They are working in utmost restrained condition and are being very patient with offenders."

Humane side of marshals

Showing their humane side, marshals are clubbing the penalty of two to three people who cannot afford to pay the Rs 250 penalty and showing it as one. "We know time is precious. So we club the penalty and collect ₹250. Two names are printed on the penalty slip. We also give them awareness talk and show them videos," Col Singh said.



DK, Dharwad see drastic dip in cases

VINCENT D'SOUZA & ARUNKUMAR HURALIMATH
@ Mangaluru, Hubballi

HERE is some cheering news. Dakshina Kannada and Dharwad districts are seeing a fall in the Covid-19 cases.

Dakshina Kannada, one of the first districts in the state to witness a surge in cases, has been seeing a drastic dips in the past one week. The positivity rate, which had peaked to 28 per cent two months ago, has now come down to 5 per cent which is almost similar to the state average.

The district has been faring well on other indicators like mortality and discharge rates compared to other high-burden districts. Sources said the positivity rate steadily started sliding in the past two months after testing was ramped up and as people started voluntarily coming forward to get the tests done. On an average, over 3,000 tests are conducted daily.

Deputy Commissioner K V Rajendra said they are now focusing on shedding the high Covid burden district tag. He said the active cases which had touched 5,000 a few weeks ago, are now below 3,000.

As for Dharwad district, for the first time in the last four months, the number of positive cases is down. The district which was reporting 300 cases per day, is now registering 150.

One of the reasons is that the health department along with the district administration has been conducting more than 1,800 tests per day. As the number of active cases declined, many Covid Care Centres have been closed.

District health officer Dr Yashwant Madinkar said as the number of positive cases are declining, the number of active cases may fall further.

As per data, the number of active cases was less than 200 in the beginning of June.

The positive cases gradually increased and active cases reached 2,200 in mid-July. In September, active cases were about 2,500 which continued till October first week. In a span of 20 days, the number of fresh cases declined and also active cases came down to 1098 as on Wednesday from 2,524 on October 5.

Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa reaches Kalaburagi airport during his aerial survey of flood-hit regions on Wednesday

Party may suggest action against Yatnal

ANUSHA RAVI @Bengaluru

VIJAYAPURA MLA Basanagouda Patil Yatnal's statements against Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa have left the State leadership embarrassed. Although Yatnal has made controversial statements in the past, his direct attack on Yediyurappa this time has compelled the State leadership to take note.

Sources in the party said that disciplinary action is being considered against Yatnal for his remarks but a round of talks is expected to be held before that.

"State party president Nalin Kumar Kateel and the Chief Minister will speak to him. They have called for a meeting with Yatnal," said C T Ravi, national general secretary of the party.

Yatnal had refused a meeting with Yediyurappa earlier this year when the Chief Minister was reaching out to address dissent among North Karnataka leaders including Umesh Katti over cabinet berths and constituency funds.

Sources within the State unit, however, said that Kateel is contemplating recommending action against Yatnal to the party's central disciplinary committee. "The regular procedure when it comes to such actions or comments by sitting MLAs is for the central disciplinary committee to intervene and issue notice. We are considering recommending this to the central leadership," said a State unit office bearer.

In a public address on Monday, Yatnal had said that Yediyurappa's time to let go of the Chief Minister's chair had come and he was withholding funds meant for other constituencies while approving funds only for his home turf of Shivamogga.

BJP micro-managing caste equation to win Sira

Leaders from particular communities called for targeted campaigning

ASHWINI M SRIPAD @Bengaluru

THE BJP wants to repeat its last year's KR Pete bypoll victory in Sira, but with a different strategy. This time, it is focusing on micro-managing the caste equation to woo voters from smaller castes.

The constituency has around 2.1 lakh voters, with Kunchatiga Vokkaliga community constituting the biggest share of over 50,000 votes. With the candidates from all the three major political parties, BJP's Dr Rajesh Gowda, Congress' T B Jayachandra and JDS' Ammajamma, belonging to the same community, there will definitely be a split in this vote block. The constituency has always picked either a JDS or a Congress candidate. This is the first time that the saffron party is in serious contention. In the 2018 Assembly polls, JDS candidate B Sathyanarayana got over 74,000 votes, Congress candidate T B Jayachandra 63,000 and BJP's S R Gowda only 17,000 votes. Even in the 2013 polls, Congress and JDS candidates secured 74,000 and 60,000 respectively, while the BJP managed just 19,000.

This time, however, it is a matter of prestige for the BJP. Even before the polls were announced, the government notified the Kadu Golla Development Board, clearly aimed at wooing the community that has over 25,000 votes in Sira.

Senior BJP leader and MLC Ravikumar said, "Not all BP leaders and legislators are invited for canvassing. We're doing cluster-based campaigning where a leader from a particular community, which has a large presence in the constituency, is called in to attract that set of voters."

The constituency also has around 17,000 Kuruba and 16,000 Valmiki Nayaka votes and that was the reason ministers K S Eshwarappa and B Sriramulu from these two communities campaigned here. "We are not calling in Lingayat leaders as the voter number is small," said another party leader.

JDS candidate Ammajamma, who lost her husband and sitting MLA B Sathyanarayana, and Congress' T B Jayachandra, who was defeated in the last election, are depending on sympathy votes, while BJP is targeting around 55,000 votes in addition to its traditional 17,000-18,000 votes to win the poll. "We hope to get a good share of votes from the Kunchatiga Vokkaliga community. If we can also manage Golla, Kuruba, Nayaka and other minor communities, we can win or at least give a good fight. We have never won here. If we win, it will be a repeat of remarkable KR Pete victory," the leader said.

STATE CABINET MEETS TODAY

There won't be any briefing like the last time when there was no briefing after the meeting. DEVE GOWDA GIVES BOOSTER SHOT TO JDS CAMPAIGN IN SIRA

From left: JDS supremo H D Deve Gowda, party candidate Ammajamma, and former CM H D Kumaraswamy at a rally in Sira on Wednesday

JDS patriarch and former PM H D Deve Gowda, who is 87 years old, is campaigning for his party candidate Ammajamma at the Sira Assembly constituency ahead of the November 3 bypolls. Gowda, who is planning to stay in the constituency till November 1, visited a number of villages and also addressed an election rally in Sira.

Gowda said both the Congress and BJP are targeting the JDS. "I will be here for the next 10 days and will give replies to them one by one. I am not scared, and I cannot be misled. When I was the CM, nine constituencies in Tumakuru had JDS MLAs. In the last election, the number reduced to four, and of them, B Sathyanarayana passed away. Both the Congress and JDS are targeting us because we have fielded his wife Ammajamma," he added.

On JDS leaders quitting the party, he said that some might have joined other parties, but he is not ready to give up. "Both the national parties seem to be working towards finishing off this regional party. The BJP may have the money power to strike us with, but the JDS workers' enthusiasm will ensure victory for the party candidate," he said, impressed with the large turnout at Dodda Aladamara near Kallambella.

Asked why Gubbi MLA S R Srinivas is not campaigning, Gowda said that he has tested Covid-positive. "One need not give any political colour to his absence," he said.

"Siddaramaiah says that H D Kumaraswamy's tears should not be taken seriously. But he should know that because of Deve Gowda's tears, he became a deputy CM and not H D Kumaraswamy," Gowda hit back, reminiscing over the 2006 JDS-Congress coalition government. "Deve Gowda came to politics a long time back and Siddaramaiah joined much later, 20 years later," he said.

Funds allotted for flood-hit dists: CM

DURING the meeting, the CM also directed the officials to give a detailed report on extent of flood damage. Before embarking on the aerial survey, the CM, who spoke to mediapersons at Jindal Vijayanagar Airport in Ballari, said funds have been allotted for the flood-affected districts and more will be released after discussing with the officials.

After the meeting with officials at the Kalaburagi airport, the CM was to continue his aerial survey of some taluks in the district as well as of Vijayapura district in the afternoon. But the skies opened up and he had to call it off. Yediyurappa had to wait till the arrival of a special aircraft from Hubballi after refuelling and returned to Bengaluru from Kalaburagi.

He was accompanied by Home Minister Basavaraj Bommai, Animal Husbandry Minister Prabhu Chavan and Commissioner of State Disaster Management Authority, Manoj Rajan. The CM and his entourage did not visit any flood-hit areas, as demanded by the opposition Congress.

With the floods causing a drinking water crisis, in Kalaburagi and other places, the CM said local officers have been directed to solve the problem on priority by providing water in tankers. Instructions have also been given to solve the power crisis and take up road repair works.

Kalaburagi district incharge secretary Kapil Mohan and Deputy Commissioner V V Jyothsna, who briefed the CM, said nine villages were fully submerged and 93 villages were partially submerged over the last five days. In all, 36,692 people from 102 villages have been shifted to relief centres. Standing crop in 36,000 hectares have been badly affected in Yadgir district and about 10 villages were affected due to the overflowing Bhima river.

State extends compensation to flood victims

ENS @Bengaluru

WITH the election model code of conduct in place in the run-up to polls to four seats in Legislative Council and two in Assembly, and prohibiting the announcement of any new schemes, the state government has extended the existing compensation to victims affected by rains and floods over the last week in four districts. The yardstick that was applied for flood victims in August-September earlier this year is being extended to flood victims of Kalaburagi, Yadgir, Raichur and Vijayapura.

Every family affected by floods is entitled to receive ₹3,800 as immediate cash relief under SDRF/NDRF norms, but the State government enhanced it by ₹6,200 to make it ₹10,000. The State government's revised compensation for reconstruction of houses has also been extended. Under this scheme, Rs 5 lakh will be given for fully damaged houses (over 75 per cent damage) that require reconstruction, ₹3 lakh for renovation of partially damaged houses (25-75 per cent) and ₹50,000 for marginally damaged houses (15-25 per cent).

BJP MLA protests for liquor outlet

Bengaluru: BJP MLA Goolihatti Shekhar sits on a dharna outside the excise department office in Chitradurga on Wednesday to protest against the delay in issuing a no-objection certificate to a liquor outlet. The MLA from Hosadurga is no stranger to controversy and many will remember how he stood on top of the legislators' table, tore open his shirt and protested in the Assembly during a trust vote in 2010. Last year, he was in news for trying to immolate himself while protesting against harassment to his supporters.

Harshavardhan slams party MP Simha

Mysuru: BJP MLA Harshavardhan slammed party MP Pratap Simha for interfering in the affairs of his constituency and casting aspersions against him. At a recent DISHA meeting, Simha questioned officials from Nanjangud about relief funds from a pharma company, and also about the delay in constructing panchayat buildings. But this did not go down well with the MLA. "Simha should quit his post if charges against me are not proved. I will do the same if they are proved," he said.

Rebels chipping away at BJP votes in SE Graduates' seat

G SUBHASH CHANDRA @Davangere/Chitradurga

WITH the 'D' Day approaching fast for the South-East Graduates' constituency, the candidates are doing their last rounds of campaigning before the voting on October 28.

There are 15 candidates in the fray, including official picks from the three major political parties — BJP, Congress and JDS — and also two BJP rebels. While Congress' Ramesh Babu and JDS' Chowdareddy Toopalli have no intra-party dissidence, BJP's Chidananda M Gowda is facing a stiff competition from, D T Srinivas, who is the husband of Hiriyur BJP MLA K Poornima, and Dr Halanuru S Lepakshi.

The BJP did try to dissuade the two from contesting the polls, but when they were not convinced, party bigwigs campaigned hard for Chidananda, knowing full well that it would be a hard-fought contest.

MLA Poornima said she is embarrassed by her husband contesting as an independent, but did not make it clear whether she is supporting her spouse or Chidananda.

Lepakshi told TNIE that he is confident of winning the election as there is a sympathy factor in his favour, because the saffron party has denied him a ticket not this once, but twice earlier. "It was the same Chidananda Gowda who criticised the BJP during the Assembly, Parliamentary and MLC elections. Though the BJP has given him the ticket, he is not known among voters," he commented.

"I have worked for 30 years helping the cause of graduates and teachers which has stood me in good stead. I also belong to the numerically strong Lingayat community," he said.

BJP election in-charge for the constituency K S Naveen said, "However hard the two rebel candidates may try, it is not easy to change the minds of an educated, sensitive electorate," he said.

The party's campaigning is well-oiled, and party MLAs and MPs are campaigning for Chidananda which will help him sail through, he added.

Independent candidate Dr Halanur S Lepakshi campaigned in the South East Graduates' constituency at Gubbi in Tumkuru district on Wednesday

Congress protests 'assault' by BJP workers

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

Congress workers stage a protest outside the Nandini Layout police station in Bengaluru on Wednesday

WORKERS of the Congress, led by former MP Dhruva Narayana, staged a protest outside Nandini Layout police station on Wednesday alleging assault by BJP workers. Bengaluru Rural MP D K Suresh who arrived at the police station later filed a complaint against former corporator and newly joined BJP leader Velu Nayak for allegedly assaulting two Congress workers during campaigning.

The Congress also submitted CCTV footage capturing the alleged assault on its workers by a gang of 30 people led by BJP candidate Muniratna's supporters. After hours of protest, Congress workers were asked to withdraw it by Suresh. He warned of enhanced agitation if action is not taken against those who assaulted his party workers.

"There are allegations that many valid voters -- especially Congress supporters --- have been removed from electoral rolls and our workers were engaged in cross-checking voters with the voter list. It is not illegal. Instead of taking law into their own hands, BJP workers should have filed a complaint with the ECI if there were any violations. We demand immediate action, failing which campaigning will only take place in front of the police station from Thursday," said Suresh.

Velu Nayak is one of the 34 leaders of JDS and Congress who joined the BJP in the run-up to the November 3 Rajarajeshwari Nagar bypolls. BJP candidate Muniratna was not available for comment on the allegations levelled against his supporters. The Nandini Layout police have registered an FIR under various sections of the IPC including those for criminal intimidation, wrongful restraint, intentional insult and provocation.

Covid casts shadow over Ayudha Puja at Soudha

BANSY KALAPPA @Bengaluru

DASARA, called the Nada Habba or the festival of the land, is one of the biggest celebrations in the state and has been observed over the years at Vidhana Soudha. Of 10 days of festivities, Ayudha Puja is the biggest of them all. This year, it has fallen on October 25, which is a Sunday. But not to miss the tradition, the Soudha staff are celebrating it on Friday as Saturday, Sunday and Monday are holidays. The celebration this year, however, will have Covid restrictions in place and will be muted as compared to earlier years. Colour rangolis, breaking of ash gourd in front of office chambers and vehicles, etc have been banned.

Also, many ministers and bureaucrats are giving the celebrations a miss. Speaker Vishweshwar Hegde Kageri is himself away and will not be part of the annual festival.

Staffers have invited priests to perform pujas at all offices in Vidhana Soudha

Most of the staff members have invited priests to perform pujas to all the office equipment that include telephones and computers too.

This is the time when ministers shower their staff with gifts, sweet boxes and clothes. But this year, however, all that will be gone. Some staff members said that even small additional amounts needed to conduct pujas, sourcing puja material and inviting priests have not been given by ministers. The staff have been told to manage it themselves.

The police station on the Soudha premises, however, is decking up and all the weaponry used by the policemen is being carefully cleaned and polished for the priest at the shrine to offer prayers. Vidhana Soudha secretariat will also celebrate, but the sections will have muted celebrations.

NIA arrests auto driver in DJ Halli case

Second arrest in the case; Airguns, pellets and other weapons found in searches across 30 locations

BALA CHAUHAN @Bengaluru

THE National Investigation Agency (NIA) arrested Syed Setu, an autorickshaw driver, in the Devarajeevanahalli (DJ Halli) arson case, said placed sources.

"Syed (34) was allegedly involved in arson and rioting at DJ Halli police station on August 11 and had been absconding since," added the source.

This is the second arrest made by the NIA in the DJ Halli and Kadugondanahalli (KG Halli) violence cases. On September 24, the agency had arrested alleged "key conspirator" Sayyed Saddiq Ali (44) for his alleged involvement in the attack on KG Halli police station. "Ali is a recovery agent with a bank and had been absconding since August 11, immediately after the riots," the NIA had stated.

An NIA team has been camping in Bengaluru since it took over investigation in the DJ Halli and KG Halli violence cases, and has also conducted searches at 30 locations in Bengaluru.

"During the searches, airgun, pellets, sharp weapons, iron rods, digital devices, DVRs (Dynamic Vision Resources), and many incriminating documents and material related to Social Democratic Party of India (SDPI) and Popular Front of India (PFI) were seized," the NIA had stated.

Around 8.30pm on August 11, an over 3,000-strong mob went on the rampage in DJ Halli and KG Halli police station limits in East Bengaluru, in protest against a blasphemous social media post, allegedly put up by Naveen P, nephew of Congress MLA from Pulakeshinagar, Akhand Srinivasamurthy. He was arrested the same day.

The large-scale violence had claimed three lives in police firing, besides causing extensive damage to DJ Halli police station, other public and private properties, including the residence of Srinivasamurthy.

Besides the NIA, the Central Crime Branch of Bengaluru City Police is also probing the case and has submitted a preliminary chargesheet against former mayor R Sampath Raj (Congress) and Congress corporator Abdul Rakeeb Zakir as accused.

Don't share video link code with litigants: HC to lawyers

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

THE Karnataka HC on Wednesday requested members of the Bar not to share the video conference IDs and password with litigants.

Passing the order after the video conference connection snapped during the hearing of a batch of public interest petitions relating to the IMA scam due to the excessive number of users, a division bench of Chief Justice Abhay Shreeniwas Oka and Justice Ashok S Kinagi said that advocates can accommodate their litigants in their offices, if they want, but they cannot be permitted to join the video conference directly.

Meanwhile, the bench cautioned the State that it will view the matter seriously if it fails to release non-salary grants to the Competent Authority (CA). It also added that it is necessary to provide all infrastructure to the CA and he cannot be neglected.

The government has released required salary grants to the office of the CA, but has not provided non-salary grants for payments towards purchase of office equipment, stationary, outsourcing of vehicles for officers and for payment towards forensic audit, videography, valuers, Centre for Smart Governance, etc. It has also not released office maintenance and contingency grants to take up renovation of the new office space allocated at Podium Block, VV Towers.

PIL challenges provisions of Transgender Persons Act

The HC issued notices to the state and Centre on a PIL questioning the constitutional validity of the Transgender Persons (Protection of Rights) Act, 2019 enacted by the Union government.

A division bench of Chief Justice Abhay Shreeniwas Oka and Justice Ashok S Kinagi heard the petition by Ondede trust and two others.

The petitioners have alleged that the Centre is keen to operationalise the Act. They said offences of special assault in the IPC against women have a punishment of seven years and above, but similar offences against transgenders is only from six months to two years.

Floodwater started receding in some parts of Hyderabad on Wednesday. Following a week-long rain fury, citizens are picking up their lives | EXPRESS

No rain in Hyd over weekend

IMD says thunderstorms, rain likely today

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Hyderabad

THOUSANDS of families across Hyderabad, who have been facing the onslaught of the floods, can finally have some respite from the rains as the weatherman has forecasted no rains or thunderstorms on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Even after that, no major change in weather conditions is expected. However, thunderstorms are likely at isolated places across Telangana on Thursday, the India Meteorological Department (IMD) has said.

In another piece of good news for the people of the city, the low pressure area (LPA) over the Bay of Bengal, which was well-marked and could have caused more rains, is headed towards the coasts of West Bengal and Bangladesh.

Meanwhile, a couple of places in Hyderabad received light showers, measuring less than 10 mm, on Wednesday. Across Telangana, only a handful of places in the southern districts received light to moderate showers.

Hyderabad received 536 per cent more than normal rainfall in October. Since the start of this month, it has received a whopping 401 mm (40.1 cm) rainfall till Wednesday. According to the IMD, this is 326.3 mm over and above the normal rainfall for the city in October. The city had also recorded the highest ever 24-hour rainfall for the month of October, at 19.2 cm.

Due to the above-normal heavy monsoon rains and later, the abnormal thundershowers, Hyderabad has already received one-and-half times more than a year's worth of rainfall. The city has, so far, received 134 cm rainfall, against the normal annual of 82 cm. Many other parts of the State have also received heavy rains this month. Telangana, on an average, has received 165.5 mm rainfall since the start of October as compared to the normal of 71.6mm.

KIA resumes 88% of its pre-Covid routes

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

KEMPEGOWDA International Airport has achieved 88% of its pre-Covid domestic connectivity as well as 53% of its air traffic movements (arrivals and departures).

The airport operator of Bangalore International Airport Limited (BIAL), released an official statement on Wednesday, saying, "Bengaluru has reconnected 51 domestic destinations, achieving 88% connectivity of the pre-Covid-19 routes. The Government of India's Vande Bharat Mission and Air Bubble programmes have enabled Bengaluru airport to connect with 22 international destinations. With the gradual easing of restrictions, air traffic movements have witnessed an encouraging trend, recovering 53% of the previous year's flight movements, following successive measures to unlock India's economy." Bengaluru airport has become the first metro city airport to record positive growth in cargo volumes in September 2020, compared to last year, it added.

"In the first two quarters of this financial year, airport cargo terminals processed 131,603 metric tonnes (MT) freight. The cargo processed in September was 32,449 MT, a growth 0.3%, against same period last year." The month also witnessed 4.5% growth in international cargo, of which export cargo grew by 7.6%. Meanwhile, domestic cargo is showing a slower recovery and is 5.2% lower than the same period in the previous year, it said.

Perishable cargo has seen a major growth with the airport processing 17,212 MT during this period. Pomegranates, ready-made garments, engineering goods, pharma and medical supplies are among the exported items.

The introduction of road feeder service – LOGI Connect – to link cities like Tirupur, Coimbatore, Ambur, Salem, Erode, Hyderabad and Chennai augmented growth, powering KIA's all-India market share of air cargo from 11% to 14%. "Before the pandemic, around 60% of domestic and international freight was being carried in belly space of passenger aircraft and the remainder in freighters. With the reduction in passenger flights, several airlines – both domestic and international – converted passenger flights to cargo aircrafts, enabling the availability of a larger cargo capacity." This helped the growth of cargo ATMs by 139% against the previous year, the release added.

Robbery clip goes viral, probe launched

Bengaluru: A video of two armed youths robbing a man near Chickpet Metro station has gone viral on social media. As no complaint has been filed, police are probing the case. In the video, two youths are seen looking for potential victims. While their first target manages to escape, an unsuspecting passerby is caught by his shirt collar by the miscreants. While one searches his pockets, the other is seen threatening the victim at knifepoint. The incident was recorded by a person sitting inside a truck.

Gangrape: One accused was a minor

MAJAGE added that the victim, who discontinued her studies after the incident, came all the way from her hometown and withstood with the rigorous cross-examination to nail the accused, though she has suffered mental trauma and humiliation.

Six of eight accused were sentenced to life imprisonment in September 2013 by the trial court. The student was gangraped after she was dropped off at the girls hostel near Gandhi Bhavan on the Bangalore University campus, by her friend in a car around 9 pm on October 13, 2012.

One of the accused, Ramu, was sentenced in 2017, as he was absconding after the crime and was later arrested. The proceedings was initiated against another accused under the Juvenile Justice Act, as he was a minor then.

HELPING HAND

Kindness in khaki, police officer builds home for two orphans

KARTHIK K K @Mysuru

MOVED by the plight of two orphan girls struggling to make ends meet amid the pandemic inside a dilapidated house at a remote village in HD Kote taluk of Mysuru, S Doreswamy, an assistant sub-inspector of police spent money from his pocket to reconstruct a house for them besides assuming guardianship of the duo.

Life of 17-year-old Deepa (name changed) and 14-year-old Rani (name changed) turned topsy-turvy when they lost their parents eight years ago. Their grandmother used to take care of the duo but she too died due to age-related issues. Neighbours and a few residents of Shirmahalli village in HD Kote taluk helped them all these years but the Covid outbreak pushed the girls to struggle even for two square meals a day.

Doreswamy, who is serving as an ASI in HD Kote police station, learnt about the struggle of the girls during the lockdown and helped them with the required groceries and other essentials besides giving an undertaking to look after their education expenses.

Keeping his promises, the police officer along with his wife Chandrika assumed guardianship of the girls and going a step forward, the couple also reconstructed the house by spending over ₹3 lakh.

The couple held a simple housewarming ceremony on Monday and gifted all the essential items to the orphans besides enrolling Deepa to a private college to continue her education. They even got her a new smartphone to keep pace with online classes. Deepa said they now have a fatherly figure to look after them. "He is looking after us more than a father. Our house neither had a bathroom or a toilet," she said.

Doreswamy said, "I feel as human beings it is our duty to respond and help those in distress lead a decent life. I am doing a bit of what I can do. I will always stand by them come what may and will bear all their education and other expenses."

HEED PM'S COVID WARNING FOR THE FESTIVE SEASON

With the festival season well underway and expected to last until December at least, the choice before the people is quite straightforward. To celebrate religious festivals as overtly and ostentatiously as in the previous years and risk a surge in Covid-19 cases, or to religiously follow health guidelines to keep the disease at bay. But if the initial participation in the festivities is anything to go by, then health has been given secondary importance. It was for this reason that Prime Minister Narendra Modi had to make a personal appeal to the people to not let the guard down as the pandemic is far from over. Whatever his government's failings, Modi still enjoys widespread popularity and the people have followed his appeals in the past. Whether they will heed his call again remains to be seen but the ball is now firmly in the 130 crore populace's court. Kerala paid the price for throwing caution to the wind during Onam in August and the state has seen a spike in Covid cases recently.

No religion enjoins its followers to throng temples, churches, mosques or gurdwaras to pay obeisance. No religious festival mandates devotees to be outwardly celebratory. No God will be angry if pilgrims do not now make a beeline for holy rivers and sites to offer prayers. Yes, festivities will be subtle and muted, but the religiosity of the occasion will not be diminished in any manner. Religion and festivals need to be currently kept a personal affair, not a public spectacle.

As festivities gather steam elsewhere, a festival of democracy is in progress in Bihar. With electioneering heading towards a crescendo, what is disturbing are media reports, visuals and photographs of health guidelines being flouted openly. The numbers have not been capped at election rallies, masks are an exception rather than the rule and socialising instead of social distancing appears to be the norm. Political parties and the Election Commission are squarely to blame for this. While elections should go ahead, they ought to have come to a consensus on banning public rallies and meetings. After all, voter choices are more often made at home, not at election venues.

EVOLVE ACTION PLAN TO PREVENT HYD FLOODS

There has been unprecedented, heavy rainfall yet again in Hyderabad and its surroundings. The Telangana capital, an ever-growing city, has been battered and subject to flooding in many localities with no relief in sight for the last few weeks. The calamity has already claimed around 50 lives and left a trail of destruction at a time when people were looking forward to Dasara festivities. The 31 cm rain recorded within 24 hours last week was the city's worst in 100 years. It was followed by three spells of rain ranging from 15 to 20 cm. The city roads became waterways, homes were wiped out, and cars and other vehicles floated around, piling up on one another. Even though it has been more than a week since the calamity visited, the people are yet to pick up the pieces of their broken lives. Chief Minister K Chandrashekar Rao announced ₹10,000 to each flood hit family and ₹1 lakh to those who lost their houses while sounding an SOS to the Centre for an immediate relief of ₹1,350 crore, against the total estimated loss of over ₹5,000 crore.

However, nature's fury has left an indelible message. This should be treated as a wake-up call for a permanent solution to this recurring devastation in one of the most livable cities of the globe. All those hundreds of water bodies and nalas, including the famous Musi River that traverses the city, which were hitherto encroached upon by buildings, have now regained their original shape and water spread area. It is high time the TRS government initiates action towards restoration of all the water bodies. There are several master plans prepared in the past on how to restore them that are gathering dust. There is no need to think of another one now. What Hyderabadis need is an action plan to implement some of the earlier suggestions, including putting an advanced flood warning mechanism in place. Given the politics involved in removing the thousand-odd encroachments on a war footing with elections to the Greater Hyderabad Municipal Corporation around the corner, the state government should at least implement it immediately after the polls are over so that Hyderabadis can heave a sigh of relief by the next rainy season.

Better sense has prevailed and the Centre has now expressed its willingness to borrow through a special window. Now we have to reach a consensus on how much to borrow

TOWARDS A CONSENSUS OVER GST COMPENSATION

T M THOMAS ISAAC

Finance Minister of Kerala

AMIT BANDRE

The Union government has travelled a long way since it announced in the Budget speech of 2020-21 that hereafter "the transfers to the fund would be limited only to collection by way of GST compensation cess". This was a negation of the repeated assurances that were given to the states in the Empowered Committee of state finance ministers, GST Council and even Parliament. The understanding was that if there was a shortfall in the collection of GST Cess Fund, it would be made good by way of Central government borrowing, to be recouped by extending the compensation cess beyond the stipulated five years. After nine months of acrimonious wrangling, it has now agreed to borrow at least part of the fund requirement.

Even before Covid, it was clear, given the lacklustre performance of the economy and maladministration of GST, that the revenue growth would be far below the 14% envisaged in the compensation law. The Chairman of the Finance Commission even made a suggestion in the 37th GST Council that the states should revisit the compensation formula which, of course, no state was willing to do. With the outbreak of Covid, the anxieties of the states grew manifold. The total shortfall in the GST revenue from the legally protected one in 2020-21 was expected to be ₹3 lakh crore. The only solution was to borrow to meet the shortfall and repay it by extending the cess collection.

There were two key issues: Who should borrow? How much should they borrow? In the 41st GST Council meeting, we discussed them for eight hours, and 15 states suggested that the Centre should borrow and that full compensation should be paid. But at the fag end of the meeting, without any reference to the discussions so far, the Central government placed two options before the states to choose.

Option 1 introduced a new concept of dividing the revenue losses "on account of implementation of GST" and "due to the pandemic". The compensation for the latter would be deferred to post-2022. Events like recessions, pandemics, demonetisation, etc., were never in consideration when the compensation formula was devised. The Compensation Law clearly defines how it is to be calculated and it has no reference whatsoever to any conditions, whether it be an act of nature, god or man.

In the second option, the entire shortfall was to be borrowed by states and the interest burden was to be paid from their consolidated fund. No state wanted even to consider this option.

The Centre also argued that the Attorney General had opined that it is not legally bound to compensate the states from the Consolidated Fund of India. Given the history of the discussions and the consensus reached by the states and Centre regarding compensation, bringing up these types of arguments to coerce the states to accept one of the two options is the lowest point in the Centre-state fiscal relations.

In the 42nd GST Council meeting, it was announced that 21 states had already opted for option 1. Nine states rejected both the options. There are three cardinal principles that dissenting states have raised. 1) There can be no bifurcation of revenue shortfall for compensation purposes as due to pandemic and due to implementation of GST. The entire shortfall needs to be compensated. 2) The Centre should borrow given its better capacity, ability to gain better terms and administrative ease of borrowing. 3) Compensation cannot be linked to normal borrowing or additional borrowing limits allowed to states. Both the options infringed upon the above principles and were unacceptable to us.

> In Covid times, the last thing the Centre should do is to squeeze state government expenditure. ... The best option would be to extend to all states 0.5% more unconditional borrowing to the 2% already permitted. I am certain this would provide sufficient fiscal staying power to states till a consensus is reached

It was clear from the AG's opinion that a decision of the Council was necessary to extend the cess collection and also for deferment of compensation payment beyond five years. The Council decided to extend the cess collection but no such decision was made with respect to deferment of compensation payment. The demand for a formal decision in the Council was not heeded in the name of consensus. Had such a decision been made, it would have been binding on the states that did not accept option one or two, though we would have continued to press the issue through grievance redressal mechanisms or other means. Instead of adopting such a democratic procedure, the meeting was concluded without any decision, ostensibly for lack of consensus. Then an announcement was made in the press conference. States that argued for a third option were threatened that choosing none of the options would mean no compensation.

It would appear that better sense has prevailed; the Centre has now expressed its willingness to borrow through a special window and provide back-to-back loans to states in lieu of compensation. All the dissenting states have welcomed the move. At least it has met the demand that the Central government should borrow.

Now we have to discuss and reach a consensus on how much to borrow. The dissenting states have made it clear that the entire compensation should be borrowed and paid in the current year itself. Such borrowing is not going to affect the Centre's fiscal deficit and its fears of crowding out private investment is totally misplaced. Not only consumption demand, but investment demand has also collapsed. In Covid times, the last thing the Centre should do is to squeeze state government expenditure.

It seems the Central government is not agreeable to the above suggestion. Nevertheless, it is possible to negotiate to reach an amicable agreement as in the case of the first question. It will be an irreparable damage to the functioning of the GST Council if the Centre insists on its first option and enforces it without the consensus of the Council. The best option would be to extend to all states 0.5% more unconditional borrowing to the 2% additional borrowing already permitted. I am certain it would provide sufficient fiscal staying power to states to discuss and reach a consensus on how much to borrow.

WHY NITISH KUMAR IS INDISPENSABLE IN BIHAR

RAJAN PANDEY
Teaches Political Science at Royal Global University, Guwahati

SAJJAN KUMAR
Political analyst

The electoral puzzle in Bihar could be unravelled by posing these primary questions: Who are the people standing with Nitish Kumar? Who oppose him? And what are the reasons for the same?

Given the demographic profile of the state, the numerically strong Yadavs have been the vehement critics of the Bihar chief minister on account of their loss of power. Their opposition to Nitish has further increased recently when he changed allies in 2017, from the RJD to the BJP.

On the other hand, a cursory glance reveals that the EBCs, non-Yadav OBCs, non-Paswan Mahadalits, women and some sections of upper castes have been the main votaries of Nitish. The Bihar CM has been getting upper caste support for being a friendly subaltern leader who didn't indulge in their othering, unlike Lalu Yadav who did so. The EBCs and Mahadalits supported him for getting recognised as special categories in the political and policy realm. And women across categories have backed him due to his female-centric policies at the panchayat as well as school level. During our fieldwork, we found that despite criticism, a majority of Nitish's traditional support base, especially the EBCs and Mahadalits, still prefer him—even in the aftermath of his developmental and good governance credentials eroding significantly. The reason for the same lies in the differing electoral preference between aspirational and cautious sections.

Aspirational castes are those who are not satisfied with the status quo and hence want to change it. They have the resources to take the plunge for that and withstand the shock that comes in the process. The cautious ones are those who prefer what they have, over what they can get if they go for and achieve change. They are less of risk-takers and also lack resources for the same.

In this sense, the aspirational castes are more self-confident and have greater self-pride, be it class or caste pride. The BJP voters composed of upper castes and the RJD voters, particularly the Yadavs, will come under this category. Cautious sections like the EBCs and Mahadalits are less assertive; they prefer the politics of everyday survival and therefore require constant state patronage. On the aspirational index, they are more status-quoist as long as the incumbent regime is perceived to be a lesser evil, let alone friendly. Their criticism of the incumbent is always mediated by the degree of expectation that remained fulfilled. Mistaking their criticism as a vote against the incumbent would be a case of analytical fallacy. Their criticism has an instrumental angle of seeking more attention to their interests.

Further, both the aspirational and cautious sections have a reference point to the past, albeit in different senses. The aspirational reference point is more or less restoration of past glory. So, while upper castes want to regain their dominance, a feature of pre-OBC mobilisation days, the Yadavs want to go back to the Lalu days. On the contrary, the cautious are fearful of that era, as they are better off now than in the past. So their inclination for change is overshadowed by their unwillingness to part with the current benefits.

> The Bihar CM's good governance credentials have eroded significantly. There has been widespread anger against his government's initial lockdown repsonse. But Nitish still is the pivot around whom the political dynamics of the state revolves. Why is that the case?

As they lack caste pride or confidence as compared to the upper castes or the dominant OBCs, they bestow the same to the government and its head, which is why all hope leads to Nitish, who remains the default leader even when his old aura has faded. In their perception, the Bihar CM signifies the assurance and guarantee that as long as he remains in power, the dominant caste groups would remain secondary in the prevailing power configuration of the state. Therefore, the cautious sections are likely to remain loyal to Nitish.

Further, there has been widespread anger against the Nitish government on account of the clumsy policy response to the Covid lockdown initially. However, the anger of the "lockdown victims" is compensated by state support extended to them when they came back. Most don't want it to go away. Those who are still angry could not zero in on one alternative. So the anger against the government gets divided, a scenario that suits Nitish and his JD(U).

There are challenges that Nitish is facing compared to previous elections, particularly 2015. First, we found that a section of Muslims who have been voting for him despite his past association with the BJP have now deserted the JD(U) in a big way in the aftermath of the party's support to the Citizenship (Amendment) Act. There, the JD(U) is the absolute loser and the RJD along with AIMIM the beneficiaries. Secondly, a section of upper castes are angry over not getting enough representation and may end up voting for independent, RLSP or LJP candidates hailing from their castes, leading to loss of seats in certain constituencies. However, in the final moment, the voters' psychology is known to abandon weaker candidates or parties as people as a rule don't want to waste their votes. Further, the realisation that deserting the JD(U) may open up the possibility of a return of the RJD to power is likely to bring a majority of such voters angry with Nitish back into his party's fold.

Finally, while the JD(U) is facing anti-incumbency, the gathbandhan has its own share of problems. Prime among them is the 70 seats that the Congress is contesting where the distribution of tickets is perceived to be bad. It is there that the NDA in general and the JD(U) in particular would compensate for losses they incur on account of anti-incumbency and the LJP rebellion factor. Hence, in the final analysis, as of now, Nitish remains the pivot around whom the political dynamics of Bihar revolves.

Judicial reforms necessary

Andhra Pradesh CM Jagan Mohan Reddy's letter to the Chief Justice, despite the political overtones, should lead to long-neglected judicial reforms. The judiciary is currently outside the domain of public accountability, which is one cause for the lack of trust among people.

B Kailash Shankar, Thiruvananthapuram

Scrap Collegium system

It is high time the Indian judiciary has an accountability mechanism similar to the ones in the UK and Canada. It is also time to scrap the undemocratic Collegium system for appointing judges and have a transparent judiciary to restore people's faith in the system.

Can't question Taiwan ties

China has no locus standi to question India about our developing trade and diplomatic ties with Taiwan. If Beijing can construct economic corridors through PoK and Gilgit-Baltistan, places that are considered inalienable parts of India, why should we act in accordance with the One China policy?

No rationale to this move

It is unbecoming of Punjab to formally reject the Centre's well-thought-out farm laws by passing three Bills against the Central ones. There is no rationale to this move except to oppose the Centre, citing imaginary and irrelevant reasons to justify it.

Truth is ultimate casualty

A junior doctor in UP was denied extension of his temporary appointment because he pointed out that evidence of rape may not be available 11 days after the Hathras case. A Kochi doctor was also suspended because she supported a nurse's allegation that a Covid-19 patient died due to negligence. It seems truth is the ultimate casualty.

Need a better explanation

If Dr Mohammad Azimuddin Malik truly was denied an extension for contradicting the police's story, it is indeed disturbing. The Aligarh Muslim University must come up with a better explanation as to why this happened.

Muralitharan is a role model

This is with reference to 800 & falling prey to crowd censorship (Oct 21). It is sad that Muthiah Muralitharan, one of the greatest cricket players of all-time, has been dragged into a dispute over his nationality and ethnicity. He is a role model and a movie on him would certainly be quite inspirational.

Fringe groups & hypocrisy

The editorial rightly pointed out that Muralitharan is the mentor of the Sunrisers Hyderabad IPL team owned by the Sun Network. While it is not surprising that fringe groups and the social media dictate what is to be done these days, this sends a wrong signal.

VACCINE TRIAL SITE NOT YET SELECTED

NEW DELHI: Russia's Covid-19 vaccine Sputnik V, which received regulatory approvals for clinical trials in India last week will first be tried in 100 volunteers but the trial sites, said sources, are still being worked out. The Drug Controller General of India's subject expert committee had on October 16 given conditional approval for the vaccine's trial in the country to Dr Reddy's Laboratories. "(The) Firm should generate safety and immunogenicity data on 100 subjects in phase II clinical trial and submit for evaluation before proceeding to phase III clinical trial," the committee had said.

Centre worries over a bigger winter wave

Spike in Covid cases and deaths feared as people have become lax in following norms

SUMI SUKANYA DUTTA @New Delhi

THE Centre may be heaving a sigh of relief as the trend of decline in Covid-19 cases as well as deaths in most parts of the country continues over the last few weeks, but at the same time it is also worried that this calm may be short-lived as the winter is about to set in. It is for this reason that top functionaries in the government, including the prime minister, have been warning people not to let the guard down.

Experts say that cooler weather is likely to worsen the coronavirus' spread as it happens with most viruses that attack the respiratory tract and may lead to possibly a second, even a bigger wave of cases and deaths in the country. "That's likely both because of biology and behaviour, though our experience says that latter may be mattering more," said infectious disease expert Dr Aarti Sachdeva.

The Union Ministry of Health and Family Welfare on Wednesday underlined that India has sustained its trend of maintaining the active cases below the 7.5 lakh mark for the second successive day. The decline is remarkable as it has brought down the number of active cases in India to 7,40,049 now from 10,17, 754 on September 19. On Tuesday, India — after a gap of 84 days — had registered less than 50,000 new Covid-19 cases in a 24-hour period. The decline is also reflected in reduced daily deaths which are now below 800.

A government appointed committee had earlier this week, through mathematical modelling, predicted that the pandemic has peaked in India but also warned that any laxity during the festive season and the winter can lead to a significant rise in the cases — as much as up to 26 lakh cases within a month.

"A similar pattern has been observed across the Europe and may be repeated in India, too, if people don't wear masks routinely and get too close with each other in poorly ventilated areas," said Dr Sachdeva. She added that in India, too, the winter season is marked by a significant rise in pneumonia in both adults and kids. Pneumonia is also a very common complication for the majority of Covid-19 patients who require hospitalisation. An added worry in many parts of the country is the air pollution which worsens during the winters and can aggravate the Covid-19 disease.

"In winters people tend to spend more time in closed spaces, thus increasing the transmission of aerosol or droplet containing viruses which facilitate the movement of the pathogens from one person to another," said public health researcher Dr Oommen John. "This is called contact rate and the contact rates are observed to be higher in winters." He also stressed that "viability of respiratory viruses tend to be higher in winters as they tend to be able to stay infectious for longer".

'YouTube, Google biggest competitors for teachers now'

THE National Education Policy is focused on future education management and will broaden the horizon of our students by change the way learning is imparted, said Dr Ramesh Unnikrishnan, Director-Approvals, All India Council for Technical Education, and Dr Munirudheen A, Director, AI International College, Kerala. Rajeev Gowda, former MP and professor, Indian Institute of Management-Bangalore*, was of the view that Covid-19 will change the way students engage with learning. The experts were in conversation with* Daniel Thimmayya, Chief Reporter, Edex, in TNIE Expressions, a series of live webcasts with prominent people.

Covid has slowed down the economy, the number of jobs created will be lower. It's up to our students to remember that 'when the going gets tough, the tough gets going'

Professor Rajeev Gowda

Major challenge now is for teachers, while students have more choices. Now, varied students are coming... teachers need to figure out what to teach and how to teach

Dr Ramesh Unnikrishnan

Covid has made our students and teachers more digitally literate. We're much more exposed to people with international experience. So we must make the most of this situation

Dr Munirudheen A

NEP is the Indian version of global education — what education should look like when there is no narrowing down, said Dr Unnikrishnan. "The present system had pre-defined ladders or brackets — an engineer should mandatorily study just the curriculum and their other interests are not taken into account. NEP-2020 is aimed at the overall development of the students with a huge emphasis on society, history, what the student actually wants to be. The major challenge now is for teachers, while students have more choices... teachers need to figure out what to teach and how to teach," he said.

Dr Unnikrishnan added that every teacher has two counterparts now — YouTube and Google. "The biggest competition lies there. Thus, we have kept 12-13 years as the homeworking period, in order to measure and observe the impact of the NEP," he said.

Agreeing with him, Dr Munirudheen A, said: "NEP is driving us to focus on the future instead of counting on the heritage or history of the institute. It is going to create a positive impact on how institutes will educate their students and how they will be welcomed at the workplace. Students were not given much freedom to expose themselves to discovery kind of learning, but now with autonomous institutions, they will have much more flexibility."

On whether Covid-19 has brought along opportunities that colleges can take away from, Prof Rajeev Gowda, said, "Students have to be proactive, life-long learners, keep adapting to how they learn today and then open up courses themselves over the years. Campus placements, internships pose a challenge now as these experiences are disrupted."

"Covid-19 has slowed down the economy, the number of jobs created will be lower. It's up to our students now to remember the phrase 'when the going gets tough, the tough gets going'. They need to think about what opportunities this disruption is providing, invest now in skills that enable them to perform better online, they will be in a better position."

Both Gowda and Munirudheen agreed that Covid-19 had indirectly helped digital education push and opened the horizons for both students as well as teachers. "Internet-enabled education has opened people's eyes and minds to continuous upskilling, investment in oneself and exploring different domains," said Gowda.

Oppn leaders demand release of Stan Swamy, repeal of UAPA

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

OPPOSITION leaders on Wednesday expressed solidarity with the 83-year-old tribal rights activist Stan Swamy, who has been booked under the UAPA in the Bhima Koregaon case, and demanded that he be released and the stringent law repealed.

They also urged the people to break their silence on what they called the government's efforts to muffle the voices of the weaker sections of society.

Jharkhand Chief Minister Hemant Soren condemned the arrest of Swamy, the rights activist from his state, by the National Investigation Agency.

Soren was joined by other leading political leaders of the Opposition parties, who condemned the arrest of Swamy at a virtual press conference organised by the People's Union for Civil Liberties (PUCL) on Wednesday.

Soren attacked the BJP-led NDA government for "muffling the voice of the dalits, Adivasis, minorities and other weaker sections of society" and for "targeting the non-BJP states".

Demanding Swamy's release, he said the Opposition parties should stand up against the Central Government's efforts to break the Constitutional framework and the federal structure of the country.

DMK MP K Kanimozhi said that silence from civil society on attacks against intellectuals, activists, artistes and others will encourage more such attacks. "If we allow violence to continue, then in the near future there will be no respect left for democracy," she said.

Kanimozhi called for the immediate repeal of "draconian" laws like the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act, sedition and National Security Act. She alleged that the BJP government was infringing upon the rights of the states behind the façade of Covid.

Sitaram Yechury, general secretary, Communist Party of India (Marxist), said out of the 16 people arrested in the Bhima Koregaon case, most are aged above 60 years and are vulnerable to Covid-19. "There is no humane approach by the government," he added.

Yechury said that UAPA, sedition and NSA should be removed like the Prevention of Terrorism Act (POTA) and alleged that the Centre was misusing these laws to build a theocratic state. "We had opposed the Emergency and were jailed for it. But we restored democracy. This time also we will fight for the restoration of secular democracy," he said.

Congress MP Shashi Tharoor called the charges against Swamy as "preposterous" and said that the latter was working selflessly for the Adivasis for more than four decades. "Swamy deserves our respect," said Tharoor while demanding his release.

Supriya Sule, MP (NCP), said that those who have been arrested in the Bhima Koregaon case are "innocent".

D Raja, general secretary, CPI , also called for the immediate release of all accused in the Bhima Koregaon case.

Mihir Desai, vice president, PUCL and Bombay High Court lawyer, alleged that the evidence in the three chargesheets filed in the case were "flimsy".

'Integrated theatre commands will take time'

MAYANK SINGH @New Delhi

ARMY chief General Manoj Mukund Naravane said on Wednesday that while reorganising the Indian military into integrated theatre commands is inevitable to fight the modern wars, it is going to take "a number of years" to take shape.

During a visit to College of Defence Management and Bison Division at Secunderabad, the Chief of the Army Staff said the next logical step in the process of defence reforms was the "formation of Integrated Theatre Commands to synergise the capabilities and combat potential of the three services during war and peace". However, he said this process will be "deliberate, thoughtful and well considered" and its fruition will take a "number of years".

The Army chief was optimistic about the future of integration of the armed forces, which he said was "an inevitability" as it would lead to "tri-services synergy" and optimisation of resources.

Next logical step in the process of defence reforms is formation of Integrated Theatre Commands to synergise the capabilities and combat potential of the three services —Gen MM Naravane, Army chief

The concept of theatre command is to meet requirements of modern warfare with structures which are based on integrated planning and operations under one unified authority with responsibility and accountability. This structure will have components of different wings placed under one commander instead of their own Service Chiefs.

On the government's decision to appoint a Chief of Defence Staff (CDS) and create the Department of Military Affairs, the Army chief said that it was "a momentous one" and that the services needed to "demonstrate great wisdom and statesmanship in enabling the CDS, a long-standing demand of the armed forces".

CDS General Bipin Rawat had opined in the beginning of this year that there may be a total of five different theatre commands to look after the security and defence of the country, including maritime security.

PLA soldier sent back to China

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ New Delhi

A PLA soldier, who was apprehended by Indian security forces after he crossed the LAC was handed back to China Tuesday.

Corporal Wang Ya Long had crossed over into India last Monday in the Chumar-Demchok area and was questioned by experts before being sent back. The army had said he was provided with medical assistance, food and warm clothes.

According to China's Western Theatre Command, the soldier had lost his way while helping a shepherd find his yaks along the border.

"China notified India immediately and India agreed to help search for the soldier and return him to China," spokesperson of the Western Theatre Command Senior Colonel Zhang Shuili had said on Monday.

"We hope India will fulfill its promise and return the person and work with China to implement the consensus reached at the 7th round of talks ..."

Option open for Jagan to seek impeachment, but should SC invite this situation?

ARE the high courts in India sub-ordinate to the Supreme Court? This was a question raised often. When the Supreme Court once gave a direction to the Patna High Court, certain unsavoury remarks were exchanged between the two institutions. The SC ruled that "the appellate jurisdiction inherently carries with it a power to issue corrective directions binding on the forum below and failure on the part of latter to carry out such directions or show disrespect to or to question the propriety of such directions would — it is obvious — be destructive of the hierarchical system in administration of justice. The seekers of justice and the society would lose faith in both".

The system of appointment of judges to the higher courts was taken over by the Supreme Court itself and it had evolved the collegium system through its process of judicial reasoning of restoring independence of judiciary. Then, the question is how to remove a judge whose misbehaviour or incapacity is established?

Article 124(4) and (5) of the Constitution provides for removal of a Supreme Court judge through the process of impeachment and similar power for removal of high court judge is also available under Article 218. The removal of a judge involves voting by two-thirds of the members of Parliament present and voting when a motion of impeachment is moved. The only rider is that preceding the motion, the charges made against a judge sought to be impeached should be inquired by a Judges Inquiry Committee of three judges of which one will be a sitting judge of the Supreme Court, the second is the chief justice of a high court and the third will be an eminent jurist nominated by the Lok Sabha Speaker or the Rajya Sabha Chairman. In case the committee's report does not establish a prima facie case against the judge, the motion to impeach him will automatically lapse.

Since the adoption of the Constitution 70 years ago, not one case of impeachment of a Supreme Court judge was ever moved before Parliament. At least in five cases, motions were brought against high court judges, but not one of them was taken to the logical end.

In the early 60s when complaints were made against Justice Chandra Reddy (A.P. High Court) that he was favouring persons in the Bar, the Supreme Court was at a loss to deal with the situation. Chief Justice Gajendra Gadkar went to Hyderabad on an unofficial visit. He writes in his biography:-"I took the Chief Justice into my confidence... I said in fairness, 'You give me the names of your lawyers and your colleagues whom I should take into my confidence and ask relevant questions'...He supplied me with the list and it was precisely the lawyers and judges named by him in the list that I met. To my disagreeable surprise, not only all the lawyers but even most of the judges supported the complaint...I had unfortunately come to the conclusion that many of the complaints were well founded. I also told him that I did not want to suggest any action which would discredit him in the eyes of the public, but I would propose to the Union Government to send him to Madras."

JUSTICE (RETD) K. CHANDRU
Former judge, Madras High Court

We wish we had such lawyers today practising in courts to make an informal inquiry truthful and result oriented. But we have only certain bar associations jumping into the fray and trying to save judges accused of serious misbehaviour in the name of independence of judiciary.

Time came later for the SC to evolve an in-house procedure against judges against whom serious complaints are received. A PIL was filed before the SC seeking for institutionalising a system for inquiring into the conduct of judges against whom complaints were received. The SC evolved an in-house procedure by which the CJI will satisfy himself on the worthiness of the complaint and order 'in-house inquiry'.

When a chief minister of a State takes recourse to this route with all these responsibilities and writes a letter with serious allegations to the CJI for taking action against Justice N.V. Ramana, can the complaint be thrown out even without an inquiry? His personal advisor releasing the confidential letter to the media may be an act of indiscretion. But that will not in any way minimise the seriousness of the allegations made against the judge concerned. There is no gainsaying that this is an act of executive trying to obstruct the course of justice and hence action should be initiated against the chief minister.

Even assuming that the judge concerned is inquiring into a larger issue of cleansing the political system being polluted by criminal elements dabbling in politics, that will not wipe out the seriousness of the complaints made.

If even the judiciary-evolved in-house procedure is denied to a CM, then it is not as if there are no constitutional solutions. Being the fourth largest political party in Parliament, it will be open to him to move a motion of impeachment which will also have judges inquiry into the complaint and if prima facie the misbehaviour is found to be true, then the motion will go for a political voting. Should we invite such drastic action instead of using the judicially developed concept of 'correction from within'?

TWIST IN CASE

Hathras victim's brother contests claims of 'witness'

NAMITA BAJPAI @Lucknow

THE brother of Hathras rape-murder victim has raised doubts on the claims of Vikram alias Chhotu, who says he is an eyewitness in the case.

In another twist to the case, one of the four accused has been found to be a minor on the basis of his Class 10 marksheet in possession of the CBI as part of evidence.

Vikram alias Chhotu has been repeatedly questioned by the Central probe agency. He claims to have seen the victim's mother and brother present in the millet field where the Dalit girl writhed in pain due to the injuries she had sustained in the incident on Sept 14.

Chhotu has also reportedly told the investigators that leaving the critically injured victim behind, her brother had gone back home with a stack of fodder.

However, the victim's brother has questioned the claim as well as Chhotu's intention, asking as to why he had kept mum for a month after the incident. He said Chhotu was following a "script of some forces" to make such a claim.

The CBI investigating the gang rape charge as well as the brutal assault on the young victim that led to her death has reportedly obtained an exam marksheet that suggests that one of the four accused is a minor.

Sources said the document obtained by the CBI from the house of the accused shows his date of birth as Dec 2, 2002. It means that he would attain adulthood in December.

One of the accused a minor?

One of the four accused has been found to be a minor on the basis of his Class 10 marksheet which is in possession of the CBI

The marksheet of UP Board of Secondary Education was issued from JS Inter College, Mitayee, under Chandpa police station area in Hathras from where the accused passed Class X in 2018.

The CBI has questioned the victim's family multiple times, four accused and their kin and also the doctors of Jawaharlal Nehru Medical College and Hospital, where the victim was treated after the incident.

Sources said the father of the "minor' accused had "provided water to the girl" when she was found grievously injured. The family claimed the minor was cutting grass with his mother to feed their cattle when the woman was discovered.

Nitish fumes as crowd raises slogans for Lalu

Bihar CM Nitish Kumar lost his cool when some RJD supporters raised slogans of 'Lalu Zindabad' at a poll rally. A livid Nitish asked the group not to do so. "Jiske liye nare laga rahe ho, uske liye ye hani hi karega. (It will only harm the person for whom you are raising slogans)," he said. This is not the first time that Nitish had to face such an uncomfortable situation in the recent few days. On Tuesday when he reached the LJP office to attend the 'shraddh' of Ram Vilas Paswan, some LJP workers raised slogans in support of Chirag Paswan in front of him.

BJP back to patriotic card in Bihar

Both Rajnath Singh, Yogi Adityanath aggressively talk about China, Kashmir and Pakistan

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @ Patna

IN an apparent shift of strategy barely a week ahead of the first phase of Bihar polls, the BJP has taken its campaign beyond local issues. On Wednesday, Defence Minister Rajnath Singh and UP CM Yogi Adityanath sought to aggressively sell emotional national issues.

Rajnath spoke at length about the sacrifices of Bihar Regiment's brave soldiers in the stand-off with China in eastern Ladakh, the abrogation of Article 370 and Pakistan-backed terrorism. The UP CM took up Ram temple in Ayodhya and the move to ban triple talaq.

The Defence Minister was in Bhagalpur's Kahalgaon where he hit out at the Congress for having ruined the country through politics of appeasement and "adoration" of China and Pakistan.

"I bow before the mothers of all those brave soldiers of Bihar Regiment who laid down their lives and saved the pride and glory of the country when China attempted to infiltrate into our territory," Singh said, declaring that not even an inch of the country's land can be grabbed by any power.

"Rahul Gandhi claims had the Congress government been at the Centre, it would have chased away China. But what was done in 1962?" he questioned. "Our PM has fulfilled his promises on almost all national issues. In the same way, the Nitish Kumar-led NDA government has delivered on law and order and steps to check corruption. We'll do more for the state."

CM Yogi Adityanath invoked Lord Ram and said the BJP neither spares nor forgives anyone who creates terror or disruption from across the border.

He said the Congress had made a system where no Bihari could buy land in Kashmir. But the PM has made it possible, and any Indian can now settle in Kashmir with certain conditions.

The UP CM said that whosoever will promote terrorism from across the border or anywhere will face tough action from India.

Khadse quits BJP, blames Fadnavis for his resignation

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Mumbai

SENIOR Maharashtra leader Eknath Khadse minced no words to attack former chief minister Devendra Fadnavis on Wednesday after he ended his nearly four-decade association with the BJP by submitting a one-line resignation letter.

Khadse is set to join the NCP on Friday. "I have no complaint against any BJP leader, including PM Narendra Modi and (Home Minister) Amit Shah, but Devendra Fadnavis is solely responsible for destroying my political career over flimsy allegations. There was not a single Opposition leader who demanded an inquiry against me but Fadnavis believed so-called activists and forced me to resign from his ministry," Khadse said. "I was deliberately targeted by him and his coterie."

Later, Fadnavis said he would keep doing the good work for the party despite Khadse depicting him as a villain in public eyes.

At a press meet, Khadse said that Fadnavis as the erstwhile chief minister had planned many conspiracies against him and was even responsible for the registration of molestation case against him. "After this case, I met Fadnavis and asked why bogus molestation case was lodged against him. ... It was shocking for me and I never expected that Fadnavis whom I groomed and gave space as an Opposition leader will stoop so low."

Khadse said that he took this issue with the central leadership but it informed him that Fadnavis was not in favour of taking him back in the ministry. Barring BJP state chief Chandrakant Patil, he said, no one called to stop him from resigning. "It is an emotional moment but I have to get justice and move forward," he added.

Penal action if norms flouted at poll events: EC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

TAKING note of the blatant violation of social distancing norms during poll campaigning in Bihar, the Election Commission has advised the political parties to demonstrate utmost vigil and care during electioneering.

It has asked the state election officers and the district machinery to take penal action against candidates and organizers if they fail to maintain crowd discipline.

The Commission has taken a serious view of the laxity by political parties and candidates, on the ground, in terms of maintaining crowd discipline. It "reiterates and further advises them to demonstrate utmost vigil and care during electioneering," said the EC in a letter to all the parties contesting in Bihar.

CEOs and the District Machinery would be expected by the Commission to invoke appropriate and relevant penal provisions against the candidates concerned as well as the organisers responsible for such violations, it said.

On October 9, the EC had sought the cooperation of all political parties to follow instructions related to pandemic COVID-19 at all stages, especially wherever public interface in physical form is involved.

Chirag promises to end bureaucracy raj

PATNA: LJP chief Chirag Paswan has promised 'Bihar first Bihari first' by checking "bureaucracy's dominance."

"With the release of our party's manifesto for the Bihar polls, I put forward our vision of 'Bihar 1st, Bihari 1st' which will resolve various problems that the people of Bihar have been facing," said the LJP leader. "As Lord Ram temple is being built in Ayodhya, a grand temple dedicated to mother Sita will also be built in the state in addition to a state-of-the-art cancer institute and the Bihar Youth Commission."

He promised food processing units across all districts on a priority basis, besides free travel to women in buses.

The LJP will also set up a well developed 'coaching city' for the state students to enable them to compete in top exams of the country such as for IITs, IIMs and civil services. "The coaching city will be on the lines of Kota and Prayagraj with affordable facilities of hostel, Wi-Fi and libraries".

SC-ST hostels will also be built with modern facilities.

He also promised to 10% free health care facility for the less-privileged in state's private hospitals. Paswan said an economic zone will be developed with attached IT parks and export promotion platforms and making the single window system with fixed time limit rules mandatory. ENS

UDDHAV GOVT BLOCKS CBI FROM PROBING CASES

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Mumbai

THE Maharashtra government has decided to withdraw the general consent clause for the Central Bureau of Investigation to probe any case in Maharashtra.

It means that the CBI has to take permission from the Maharashtra government if it wants to probe any case in Maharashtra. Incidentally, the Maha Vikas Aghadi government is at loggerhead with the Centre on various issues.

The Maharashtra home department issued the notifications withdrawing the general consent clause for CBI on the lines of West Bengal and Andhra Pradesh.

Under the Delhi Special Police Establishment Act 1946 , the CBI enjoys special rights which allows it to go ahead in cases without seeking the consent from the States. Now, the Maharashtra government has withdrawn this general consent clause by issuing a notification on Wednesday.

Sources said that the state government has to protect its interest in federal structure. "The Centre is continuously eroding and encroaching over the right of the states by taking any sort of the sensitive probe. It happened in the Bhima Koreogan case as well as the Sushant Singh Rajput case," a senior MVA minister told this newspaper.

Anti-Pak hoardings seen first time in Srinagar

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

ANTI-PAKISTAN hoardings appeared in some areas of Srinagar on Wednesday — the first time in Kashmir — with messages reminding the people of how the neighbouring country attacked the erstwhile princely state soon after Independence.

'What did Pakistan invasion on 22nd October, 1947 do to us.. Black Day for Jammu and Kashmir,' read the hoardings which were put up at many areas in Srinagar, including Exchange Road, Tourist Reception Centre, Jehangir Chowk, Fire Service Batamaloo, TRC, Dalgate, and Ram Munshi Bagh.

The hoardings, which had come up at places designated for hoardings by the Srinagar Municipal Corporation, were issued in the name of a little-known group, 'Centre for Inclusive and Sustainable Development'.

The posters were put up in Srinagar by a little-known group | TWITTER

Repeated calls to acting mayor of Srinagar Parvez Qadri for his statements on the posters remained unanswered.

Giving details, one of the hoardings highlighted that Pakistan attacked the princely state of Jammu and Kashmir on 22nd October, 1947. 'This was a violation of the Standstill Agreement that Pakistan had with the Maharaja of Jammu & Kashmir,' it read.

It is the first time that anti-Pakistan hoardings came up in Srinagar, which has remained a hub of separatists.

In 2010, 2016 and 2019, authorities had sealed the Lal Chowk with barbed wire and fenced the area to prevent separatists from reaching the iconic spot to stage anti-India protests there.

BJP spokesman Manzoor Bhat said the party has no role in coming up of these hoardings, which were later removed. He, however, found nothing wrong about the posters or their message.

"People should know what had happened on October 22, 1947 when Pakistani tribal invaders raided Kashmir. Our future generation should be informed about it," Bhat said.

2 MP ministers quit, set eyes on bypoll

BHOPAL: Two Cabinet ministers of the Shivraj Singh Chouhan government in Madhya Pradesh have quit, after completing six months in office without being elected to the Vidhan Sabha. Tulsiram Silawat and Govind Rajput — both Jyotiraditya Scindia loyalists — quit from their posts. Both the resignations have reportedly been accepted by Governor Anandiben Patel. Silawat and Rajput, who were among the 22 Congress MLAs whose resignations from the Vidhan Sabha and subsequent switchover to the BJP had led to fall of the Kamal Nath government in March, are now in the bypoll fray as BJP candidates, seeking re-election from Sanver and Surkhi.

HC allows relaxations for puja pandals in Bengal

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Kolkata

THE Calcutta High Court partly modified its order on community Durga Pujas, allowing drummers to perform and raising the number of people who can be present there for big pujas from 25 to 60.

Strict arrangements have been made to comply with the court order that earmarked all pandals across the state as no-entry zone in the wake of the ongoing Covid pandemic.

Despite the order banning entry in pandals, thousands of people are hitting streets ignoring social distancing norms. The Bengal government has issued instructions to all district administrations for complying with the high court's order.

The state has about 37,000 community pujas.

"We will have to divide the pandals into two categories—small and big ones—before putting up barricades. This is also a huge task as officers need to visit the sites before assessing a pandal's category," said an official of the state administration.

He also pointed out the government has to work on war footing to convert the pandals into no-entry zone.

'Ladies Special' buses back on roads

The three 'Ladies Special' buses are again ferrying the women passengers from different areas of the city to the city centre Lal Chowk and other areas. The resumption of the special bus service has come as a major relief for the women commuters, mostly office goers.

Turmoil deepens with police revolt against Army

Alleged abduction of Sindh IG by troops sparks anger, demoralised cops on mass leave

ISLAMABAD

DAYS after Pakistan's opposition parties led a second joint rally against Prime Minister Imran Khan's government, police in the Sindh province on Wednesday staged an open revolt against the Pakistan Army over the alleged abduction of their chief.

Mushtaq Mehar was reportedly kidnapped by the paramilitary Frontier Corps, controlled by the Army, to force him to order the arrest of the son-in-law of exiled former prime minister Nawaz Sharif.

The incident has sparked anger among the police ranks as Sindh Police have announced protests while about a dozen officers, including the IGP, have rendered their leave requests for a month. In a series of tweets, Sindh provincial police said the "unfortunate incident" had "caused great heartache and resentment within all ranks of Sindh Police."

After the sudden leave requests from senior police officers from across the Sindh province, Chief Minister Syed Murad Ali Shah reassured the government's support to the Sindh Police at every stage.

Shah assured the provincial police's top brass that the government would not let the force be demoralised under any condition. "Sindh Police should continue their work in an independent and impartial manner. The government is taking steps to further strengthen the professionalism of the police," the CM said. Mehar, in a brief statement, said he too considered taking a leave of absence, but changed his mind and asked his officers to defer going on leave for 10 days to give authorities a chance to investigate the matter. He did not say who abducted him or who forcibly took him to the offices of the Rangers.

Pakistan's army chief on Tuesday ordered an investigation into the incident. Police thanked the army chief for ordering an investigation into the incident.

Karachi blast kills five

A powerful explosion ripped through a four-storey building in Pakistan's Sindh province, killing at least five people and injuring 20 others, police said.

At least two floors of the building near Maskan Chowrangi in the Gulshan-e-Iqbal area in Karachi were severely damaged, leading authorities to fear that the toll may rise.

The death toll in the incident has increased to five, Faisal Edhi of the Edhi Ambulance Service said. Seven of the injured are said to be in critical condition. The security forces have cordoned off the area after the explosion. Officials said that no trace of an improvised explosive device was found at the scene. Agencies

Unrest in Nigeria spirals after shooting of protesters

LAGOS

DOZENS of buildings in Nigeria's main city of Lagos were torched on Wednesday and sporadic clashes erupted after Tuesday's shooting of peaceful protesters by security forces sparked international outrage.

At least 12 people were killed by the Nigerian army and police in two locations in Lagos on Tuesday night in a deadly crackdown on demonstrations, Amnesty International said. Peaceful protesters had gathered despite a curfew imposed to end spiralling protests over police brutality.

"Evidence gathered from eyewitnesses, video footage and hospital reports confirm that between 6.45 pm and 9.00 pm on Tuesday, the Nigerian military opened fire on thousands of people," Amnesty said in a statement.

The Lagos governor at first insisted no fatalities had been recorded but later said the authorities were investigating the death of one person resulting from "blunt force trauma to the head". Demonstrator Paul Sunday who was at the scene told AFP that the men who shot at the crowd were wearing masks and had army uniforms.

"They attacked us from back and from front," he said. "They came around 7pm when everywhere is dark."

Pictures and videos showing scenes of chaos in the aftermath of the shooting were widely shared widely on social media.

The shooting drew international condemnation, with UN High Commissioner for Human Rights Michelle Bachelet saying reports suggested it could have been premeditated. AFP

Economy likely to rebound in 2021

What led IMF to lower its forecast?

The sharper contraction is led by declining growth in India, Malaysia and Philippines. Among other reasons are geopolitical tensions threatening Asia's export-driven growth model.

IMF: Asia-Pacific economic growth to contract 2.2%

SUNITHA NATTI

THE International Monetary Fund (IMF) on Wednesday downgraded Asia Pacific's regional economic growth to contract 2.2 per cent in 2020— the worst in living memory — and 0.6 per cent lower than its June projections. The sharper contraction is led by declining growth in India, the Philippines, and Malaysia. However, it noted that green shoots were visible with Asia's economic contraction appearing to have bottomed out in Q2, 2020. Recovery may be sluggish, but growth will likely pick up to 6.9 per cent in 2021 — 0.3 per cent higher than its earlier estimates.

There's more than one reason for the downgrade. Asia's labour markets have been hit hard, and inequality has been rising much before the crisis struck. Besides, geopolitical, trade and technology tensions are threatening Asia's export-driven growth model. In addition, corporate and households are overleveraged, while public debt burden is becoming a concern for many emerging markets and low-income nations.

Even though recovery began in Q3, not all growth engines are firing with the same power across countries leading to a multispeed recovery, noted Jonathan D. Ostry, Acting Director, Asia and Pacific Department, IMF. "But, in combination with the deep recessions this year, it nevertheless implies that a number of economies will still be smaller at the end of 2021 than before the pandemic," Ostry added.

The IMF's latest Regional Economic Outlook projects that potential output by the middle of this decade could be about 5% lower than before the pandemic -- due to the fall in labour force participation and weak confidence that dims private investment. Hence, Ostry advocated that macroeconomic policy support should not be withdrawn prematurely and greater efforts to better target fiscal support and protect the most vulnerable were essential.

"The scars will be deep: with declining labour force participation and weak confidence dimming private investment, potential output by the middle of the decade could be some 5% lower than before the pandemic," Ostry said adding that prospects for a global trade-led recovery look dim, because of weak global growth, closed borders, and festering tensions around trade, technology and security — despite boost to the region from China's recovery.

> in combination with the deep recessions this year, it nevertheless implies that a number of economies will still be smaller at the end of 2021 than before the pandemic
> Jonathan D. Ostry

With the pandemic seemingly far from over, policy support should be sustained and, in some cases, increased and targeted fiscal spending is needed until the recovery is entrenched. It should aim at the most vulnerable where fiscal multipliers are highest and to jobs-oriented, inclusive and green investment. Meanwhile, advanced economies, while still in recession, are expected to do somewhat better than expected in 2020, reflecting a faster pickup in activity following earlier exit from lockdowns.

Output-linked sops for 7-8 sectors on anvil

Officials say industries such as telecom gear, automobile and parts, textiles, leather and solar cells will be covered

JAYANTA ROY CHOWDHURY
@ New Delhi

THE Centre is working on offering productivity-linked incentives (PLI) for manufacturing sectors ranging from telecom gear and automobiles to textiles soon, to boost economic recovery and attract fresh investment to make India a manufacturing hub.

"In the offing are about 7-8 sectors where the PLI scheme would be extended," Economic Affairs Secretary Tarun Bajaj said on Wednesday. The government earlier announced the PLI scheme, which provides manufacturers cash support based on their production, for electronics and pharma sectors. However, the PLI scheme will run for 5-7 years.

"It is meant to attract investment into sectors where we have competitive advantages and support industry recovery, but we realise that it cannot be forever," said officials.

"We started working on the PLI scheme as a replacement for the Merchandise Export Incentive Scheme (MEIS), but have decided to make it more broad-based to help industrial recovery as well as encourage investment," officials added.

India's index of industrial production had contracted 8 per cent in August, while IMF forecasts the country's economy may contract by as much as 10.3 per cent this financial year. Since the pandemic, global supply chains have been relocating so as to reduce a single country risk. Apple's main contractors including Foxconn have been shifting their bases to India and Brazil. Under the incentive scheme, a number of sectors including telecom gear, automobile and auto parts, textiles, leather and solar cells, will be covered.

Officials further said that the cost of the MEIS which is being replaced by another scheme called Remission of duties and taxes on exported products, was about ₹41,000 crore for the current financial year. MEIS is being scrapped from December 31, as the US had challenged it before the WTO as it is not compliant with the global body's rules. This amount would now be diverted towards the PLI scheme. A section of analysts, however, feel even the PLI scheme may run foul of WTO rules, as it could be seen as an embedded subsidy.

Centre rolls out Diwali bonus to pep up demand

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU
@ New Delhi

THE Union Cabinet on Wednesday decided to give a bonus to 30 lakh central government employees ahead of the festive season. The bonus will cost the exchequer ₹3,737 crore.

"The Union Cabinet approves productivity-linked bonus and non-productivity linked bonus for 2019-2020. More than 30 lakh non-gazetted employees will be benefited and the total financial implication will be ₹3,737 crore," Union minister Prakash Javadekar said. The productivity-linked bonus will be given to employees working at commercial establishments, like Railways, Post Office, Defence production, EPFO, ESIC and will benefit 17 lakh employees working in these establishments. The cost of the scheme will be around ₹2,791 crore.

Festive cheer

The bonus will benefit 30 lakh employees including those in autonomous central organisation

The remaining 13.7 lakh employees will be given non-productivity linked bonus worth ₹946 crore. The bonus will be disbursed immediately, in a single instalment and through direct benefit transfer, before Vijayadashami, Javadekar said. This will encourage the middle-class to spend and thus boost consumption.

The announcement comes days after Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman had announced a ₹73,000-crore demand push to the economy. Two schemes have been introduced — Leave Travel Concession (LTC) cash voucher scheme and special festival advance scheme for the central government and public sector employees. The government has been banking on the festive season sales to spur consumption, which had been muted on the back of contracting economy, salary cuts and job loss amid the Covid-19 induced lockdown.

Meanwhile, there are also some signs of an uptick in demand. According to RedSeer Consulting, the online festive season that kicked off October 15, 2020 has had a strong start. "About $3.1 billion (₹22,000 crore) worth of goods have been sold online from brands and sellers in the first 4.5 days of the online sale event," said RedSeer in a report.

ASIANOMICS

INFLATION DIPS FOR SEVENTH MONTH

Malaysia's consumer price index (CPI) fell for the seventh straight month in September, declining 1.4% over last year, government data showed. In August, the index had fallen 1.4%. The drop was more than the 1.3% decline forecast by a Reuters poll. September's decline was driven largely by the transport sector index falling 9.9% year-on-year and lower housing, water, electricity, gas and other fuel prices, the Statistics Department said in a statement. Housing, water, electricity, gas and other fuels, in addition to clothing and footwear, fell by 3% and 0.6%, respectively.

JAPAN

BOJ MAY CUT GROWTH FORECAST

As the Covid-19 pandemic weighs on the economic recovery, the Bank of Japan (BOJ) is expected to cut its growth and price forecasts for the current financial year next week, according to Reuters. The nine-member board may slightly trim its inflation forecast, largely due to the impact of a government campaign offering discounts for domestic travel. The main reason for the downward revision in growth is the bigger-than-expected economic slump in April-June and soft consumption during the summer. In July, the BOJ expected the economy to contract 4.7% this fiscal.

CHINA

NEW HOME PRICES SEE BLEAK GROWTH

Prices of new homes in China grew at a slightly slower monthly pace in September, official data showed, while the number of cities reporting monthly price increases for new homes fell. Growth in home prices was its slowest pace in over four-and-a-half years as tightening measures in some big cities helped cool the property market despite a broader economic recovery. Based on data released by the National Bureau of Statistics, average new home prices in 70 major cities rose 0.4% in September from a month earlier, compared with a 0.6% increase in August.

Businesses, governments and workers must plan to urgently work together to implement a new vision for the global workforce," said Saadia Zahidi, Managing Director, World Economic Forum. PESTICIDES

PMFAI urges Govt to roll back policy

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Chennai

THE Pesticides Manufacturers & Formulators Association of India (PMFAI) has urged the Centre to repeal the related provisions of the Insecticides Act, 1968 and the Insecticides Rules, 1971 that bleed India of more than ₹3,000 crore annually every year. The association said that the policy, which allows import of readymade formulations without registering the technical grade pesticides, is robbing farmers' of income and affecting the agrochemical industry.

"The technical grade pesticide is the main component of agrochemical and the one that carries any risk. Evaluation and registration of technical grade pesticide is key and should be the basis for granting registrations for imported formulations. This is followed by the UN's Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) and all over the world. If the technical grade materials of imported formulations are not registered in India, there is no way we can know the quality of technical used and whether it adheres to the registration guidelines. Not adhering to these guidelines, especially in terms of the impurities in technology that decides the quality of the formulation, can cause crop failures, residue problems in agricultural produce, and health hazards to farmers," explained Pradip Dave, President, PMFAI.

SBI OFFERS CONCESSION ON HOME LOANS

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

THE country's largest public lender State Bank of India has announced an interest rate concession of up to 25 bps on home loans during the festive season. For loans above 75 lakh, the lender will offer up to 20 bps interest concession, based on the customer's credit score.

It may be noted that an additional five per cent will be given if the home loan application is processed digitally on its YONO application platform. This is in addition to the lowered interest rates starting at 6.90 per cent for a home loan of up ₹30 lakh and 7 per cent for above ₹30 lakh.

Earlier, the bank had also announced a 100 per cent waiver in the processing fee for all customers applying for auto, gold and personal loans through its YONO platform. "Retail customers are availing the lowest interest rate starting from 7.5 per cent on a car loan. Gold loan and personal loan customers are also enjoying the benefits of lowest interest rates of 7.5 per cent and 9.6 per cent, respectively, this festive season," SBI said in a statement.

Similarly, Axis Bank has also rolled out a series of festive offers for its customers. The bank said customers can avail home loans starting at 6.9 per cent per annum. Meanwhile, auto loans can be availed at interest rates starting from 7.99 per cent. The bank said it will offer 100 per cent on-road funding for auto loans.

Kia Sonet gets 50,000 bookings, demand robust for UV launches

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

DEMAND remains robust for the newly launched utility vehicles (UVs) during the ongoing festive season. Korean carmaker Kia Motors on Thursday announced that the company has received over 50,000 bookings for its compact SUV Kia Sonet in just two months.

Kia claims an average of two orders are placed every three minutes since it started accepting bookings for Sonet on August 20, 2020. "This record booking number affirms its status as a game-changer by customers in the highly competitive compact SUV category... Despite challenging conditions caused by COVID-19 disruptions, Kia Motors India has not only delivered the Sonet as per promised timelines but has also ensured uninterrupted production at its Anantapur plant to meet enthusiastic customer demand," the automaker said.

In September 2020, 9,266 units of the Sonet were dispatched, making it the leader of the compact SUV segment within 12 days of its price announcement and market launch.

Compact UVs continue to increase its presence on Indian roads due to its competitive pricing and aggressive push by automakers. In recent months, the segment has seen launches by Mahindra & Mahindra, and Toyota Kirloskar, besides Kia. Japanese carmaker Nissan is expected to launch its compact SUV Magnite next month.

EMPLOYMENT

Handset makers to add 50,000 jobs in 2021

BISMAH MALIK @ Bengaluru

INDIA's handset manufacturing industry is expected to hire about 50,000-60,000 employees in 2021 amidst its efforts to lure global brands racing past China to become the world's top handset manufacturer.

"In 2021, we will be hiring about 50,000-60,000 people. This could turn into a $190 billion opportunity by 2025 with the country looking to export 600 million mobile phones worth Rs 8 lakh crore, both in the entry level as well as high-priced segments, to markets like Europe, North America and Africa," Pankaj Mohindroo, chairman, India Cellular and Electronics Association (ICEA) told TNIE.

Currently, the industry provides employment to about 7.5 lakh people and Mohindroo believes this figure to go up significantly as existing plants ramp up capacity and new plants set up manufacturing bases in India.

With the production-linked incentive scheme (PLI), the government has already roped in more than a dozen firms to scale up their infrastructure in India including tech giants like Samsung and Apple's three contract manufacturers such as Foxconn, Wistron and Pegatron. The PLI scheme provides incentives in the range of 4-6 per cent to mobile phone and electronic component makers in India.

Mohindroo, however, added that the scaling up to an $80 billion domestic mobile manufacturing market is challenging now. "A strong focus has to be there on how we build the market to this level. Exports will depend on global value chains - individual ecosystems have their own vibrancy," he added.

Like China, India needs to build its capabilities for export growth. The industry, he said, has recovered to 90-92 per cent of the pre-Covid levels, but the revenues are estimated to be hit 8-10 per cent in FY21.

Activities to resume at SAI centres from Nov

With an eye on the Tokyo Olympics and Paralympics, sporting activities are set to resume in Sports Authority of India (SAI) training centres across the country from November 1. In view of the Covid-19 situation, SAI has decided to make travel arrangements for athletes to return to their respective training centres.

Indians seek family pass for Oz tour, CA not keen

VENKATA KRISHNA B @Chennai

EVEN as Cricket Australia (CA) is finalising the itinerary for India's tour starting November-end, the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) has made a request to allow players take their families with them.

As things stand, CA has not included family members in the touring party citing Covid-19 protocols which will see the team spend the entire tour in a bio-bubble, but several Indian players are understood to be not happy with the arrangement.

The CA has more or less finalised the schedule and it could be made public by Thursday. The revised schedule will see the limited-over games take place in Sydney and Canberra instead of Brisbane, which is unlikely to host even the fourth Test, because of the quarantine rules in Queensland.

When CA asked for a list of touring party, the BCCI had sent around 50 names for clearance. The Indian players were under the impression that they can take the family members along, but CA is learnt to be in no mood to negotiate because of Covid-19 protocols. In fact, couple of Indian players are understood to have informed the BCCI that it would be difficult to tour Australia sans family as many of them have spent nearly 60 days in the bio-bubble and a repeat of it would be take a toll mentally.

The BCCI has informed players that talks are underway with CA, but so far none of them have received a guarantee. Chances of a few players pulling out if family isn't allowed hasn't been ruled out by those in BCCI. The players are also unhappy about the need to stay in bio-secure bubble throughout the tour.

Meanwhile, Test specialists Cheteshwar Pujara, Hanuma Vihari and the rest of the support staff are tentatively scheduled to leave for Dubai on Sunday. They will be placed under six-day quarantine before allowed to train the following week. They will be stationed in Dubai for two weeks before leaving together at the end of the IPL.

NO ROOM FOR ERROR

Road ahead will be tricky for Rajasthan Royals and Sunrisers Hyderabad, who occupy sixth and seventh spot respectively. The two teams face off on Thursday. Talking points...

COMBINATION CONUNDRUM

With injuries ruling out Bhuvneshwar Kumar and Mitchell Marsh, Hyderabad are still in a fix on whether to strengthen their batting or bowling unit. The team heavily relies on the top four. And to be in contention, David Warner & Co cannot afford anymore slip ups.

SETTLED MIDDLE-ORDER

Rajasthan might have found stability in the middle with Steve Smith and Jos Buttler batting down the order at No 4 and 5. The move has given decent results with both hitting a fifty each in the last two games. That the top-order has not fired will be a concern for them.

5.52 SRH's Rashid Khan has the third best economy rate in this edition.

262 No of runs scored by Jos Buttler, most among RR batsmen.

Two names for AFI secy post, Anju Sr VP

INDRANEEL DAS @Chennai

NEW secretary and treasurer, a legendary athlete as senior vice-president and elections under new constitution with limited vice-presidents and executive council members seem this year's Athletics Federation of India's polling flavour. The elections will be held during the AGM on October 31 and November 1.

As reported by this newspaper in April, two candidates — Ravinder Chaudhury and Sandeep Mehta — whose names were doing the rounds have filed their nomination for the post of secretary. The post falls vacant as CK Valson, the outgoing secretary, completed two tenures of four years as mandated by the national sports development code of India, in April. The treasurer's post will be filled by Madhukant Pathak, who is the lone nomination to replace PK Srivastava, whose tenure ended this year. Vijaylaksmi K Gupta is the returning officer for the polls.

AFI goes online, two names for secretary's post

If speculations are to be believed, Ravinder has a slight advantage as he had was the secretary in place of Lalit Bhanot in 2010 ahead of the Commonwealth Games but the final result will be clearer closer to the elections (last date for withdrawal of nominations is on Friday). Mehta's name has been entered for senior joint secretary's post too. Usually, there is no election for AFI's office-bearer's post. It needs to be seen who joins president Adille Sumariwala and Pathak as the third office-bearer. Another position that might have poll is for the post of joint secretary where six names have been entered. Indications are that one name (Pramod Jadam) that features in both joint secretary and vice-president will pave way for an unopposed five joint secretaries (four plus one woman), as per new constitution. Interestingly, 2003 worlds medallist Anju Bobby George is set to be the senior vice-president as she is the lone candidate in the 'validly nominated' list. According to Sumariwalla, this is a conscious decision to empower women athletes.

LOCAL IS VOCAL THIS SEASON

In a never-seen-before trend, willow-wielders from the country dominate run-scorers chart

RCB THRASH KKR

RCB's Mohammad Siraj starred with three wickets | SPORTZPICS

Royal Challengers Bangalore has often been criticised for their bowling performance in the past. But this IPL, bowlers have done most of the things right. On Wednesday, Mohammed Siraj broke Kolkata Knight Riders' back with his opening spell of 3-2-2-3 in Abu Dhabi. Kolkata managed 84/8 in 20 overs with Yuzvendra Chahal scalping two. Skipper Eoin Morgan scored a 34-ball 30. Bangalore chased it down in 13.3 overs.

Brief scores: KKR 84/8 in 20 ovs (Siraj 3/8) lost to RCB 85/2 in 13.3 ovs.

SWAROOP S WAMINATHAN @Chennai

IN the last seven IPL editions till 2019, Mayank Agarwal had finished in the top 25 run-scorers zero times. His best was 26th in 2019. Till then, it read like this: 50th in 2018, 84th in 2017, 87th in 2016, 32nd in 2015, 54th in 2014 and 78th in 2013.

In 2020? Third with 398 runs. The main difference between this year and some above-mentioned ones is Agarwal has been opening the batting and, thus, has more chances to express his talent. But Agarwal's place in the top-scorers chart is indicative of a wider trend in the IPL so far — Indians are dominating it at a rate not seen in the competition's history.

As of this point, five of the top six are from India, with the top three all Indian openers in one format or another. KL Rahul leads the way followed by Shikhar Dhawan and Agarwal. Faf du Plessis breaks up the monopoly before Virat Kohli and Shreyas Iyer round up the top six.

Why is it like this this year? J Arun Kumar, who has previously been the batting coach of Punjab, says it's down to good batting wickets and a plethora of Indian choices at the top of the order.

There is also intense competition of places with two T20 World Cups in as many years. "When you go through all the franchises, there are high quality Indian options at the top of the order," he says. "All of them are in good form at the same time and are using the batting wickets to perfection."

There is more than a grain of truth in that assessment. While Dhawan has four straight 50s to his name, Rahul became the first Indian to score 500 or more in three consecutive editions.

More specifically with respect to Rahul and Agarwal, Arun Kumar says it's to do with increased confidence. "Mayank is playing more freely in this IPL," he says. "It's likely to do with confidence because he is part of the Test team, has played well and is an important part of the India team."

President Gotabaya Rajapaksa and his brother, two-term former President Mahinda Rajapaksa, won Sri Lanka's parliamentary election in Aug 2020

The Rajapaksa-led Sri Lanka Podujana Party (SLPP) won 145 seats and have one seat more than the minimum number needed to change the constitution

The family has defended the proposed amendment, claiming that the new constitution would help the country to maintain a stable government

LANKA'S TRYST WITH AMENDMENTS

The Sri Lankan government will move as many as five amendments to the proposed 20th Amendment to the Constitution that aims to bolster the powers of the President during the two-day parliamentary debate on the bill that begins on Wednesday. We take a look at the contentious bill and the island's history with constitutional amendments

SUPREME COURT STEPS IN

Udaya Gammanpila, Lanka's Minister of Energy said that there were 4 clauses for which the Supreme Court had ruled must be subject to a referendum

The Supreme Court's order on the petitions challenging the constitutionality of the amendment was announced by Assembly Speaker Mahinda Yapa Abeywardena on Tuesday, making the way for the two-day debate

The court ruled that the 20A as a whole was not unconstitutional except for the 4 clauses which needed a referendum

It said that Clauses 3,5,14 and 22 in the amendment in their present form are inconsistent with Article 3 read with Article 4 of the Constitution and requires a referendum

OPPOSITION EVEN FROM ALLIES

The powerful Buddhist clergy in Sri Lanka had expressed opposition to the move which was aimed at giving President Gotabaya Rajapaksa the full executive power over parliamentary checks and balances

Three politically-influential monks, allies of the ruling party, in a letter to President Rajapaksa on Friday said that the proposed change to the Constitution would weaken the position of Prime Minister Mahinda Rajapaksa as well as powers of the Cabinet ministers

Earlier, two Buddhist sects — Amarapura and Ramanna — had opposed 20A, saying it would destroy the independence of the judiciary, public service, system of elections while undermining the independence of Parliament and its members

OSIRIS-REx finally 'kisses' asteroid Bennu

Scientists want 60g of soil to help them analyse what is considered to be the building blocks of our solar system

SPACE

CAPE CANAVERAL: A NASA spacecraft descended to an asteroid on Tuesday and dodging boulders the size of buildings, momentarily touched the surface to collect a handful of cosmic rubble for return to Earth. It was a first for the US — only Japan has scored asteroid samples.

"Touchdown declared," a flight controller announced to cheers and applause. "Sampling is in progress."

Confirmation came from the OSIRIS-REx spacecraft as it made contact with the surface of the asteroid Bennu more than 320 kilometres away. But it could be a week before scientists know how much, if much of anything, was grabbed and whether another try will be needed. OSIRIS-REx will return the samples in 2023.

"I can't believe we actually pulled this off," said lead scientist Dante Lauretta of the University of Arizona. "The spacecraft did everything it was supposed to do."

Osiris-Rex took four and half hours to make its way down from its tight orbit around Bennu, following commands sent well in advance by ground controllers near Denver. Bennu's gravity was too low for the spacecraft to land — the asteroid is just 1,670 feet across. As a result, it had to reach out with its 11-foot robot arm and attempt to grab at least 60 grammes of Bennu.

Sampling arm of the OSIRIS-REx spacecraft during a rehearsal for an approach to sample site on Bennu on August 11, 2020 | AP

The University of Arizona's Heather Enos, deputy scientist for the mission, described it as "kissing the surface with a short touch-and-go measured in just seconds."

At Mission Control for spacecraft builder Lockheed Martin, controllers on the TAG team — for touch-and-go — wore royal blue polo shirts and black masks with the mission patch. The coronavirus pandemic had resulted in a two-month delay.

Tuesday's operation was considered the most harrowing part of the mission, which began with a launch from Cape Canaveral back in 2016.

A van-sized spacecraft with an Egyptian-inspired name, OSIRIS-REx aimed for a spot equivalent to a few parking spaces on Earth in the middle of the asteroid's Nightingale Crater. After nearly two years orbiting the boulder-packed Bennu, the spacecraft found this location to have the biggest patch of particles small enough to be swallowed up.

After determining that the coast was clear, OSIRIS-REx closed in the final few metres for the sampling. The spacecraft was programmed to shoot out pressurised nitrogen gas to stir up the surface, then suck up any loose pebbles or dust, before backing away.

Scientists want at least 60 gramme and ideally, closer to 2 kgs of Bennu's black, crumbly, carbon-rich material — thought to contain the building blocks of our solar system. Pictures taken during the operation will give team members a general idea of the amount of loot; they will put the spacecraft through a series of spins Saturday for a more accurate measure.

Tattoos overheat our body

HEALTH

NEW YORK: Researchers have found that tattoos may impair natural sweating, potentially causing the body to overheat if the tattoos cover a large area of the body.

In the study, published in the Journal of Applied Physiology, the research team outlined the connection between tattoos and damage to sweat glands.

Their study of tattooed skin and adjacent non-tattooed skin on the arms of an evenly-divided group of men and women found that the tattooed sections of skin had reduced sweat rates. That's a potential problem because sweating is how the body cools itself and regulates its temperature.

"Any damage to eccrine (sweat) glands within the skin can impair sweating response and potentially increase the risk of overheating if the damage covers a large enough body surface area," said study author Scott L Davis from University of Texas (UT Southwestern) in the US.

Eccrine sweat glands, which are found in most skin across the body, produce sweat to cool the body. The human body must regulate its temperature for survival.

The findings of the study suggest that even though nerve signals to sweat glands weren't affected in tattooed skin, the sweat glands themselves were likely damaged during tattooing.

Radiation harms bee population

ENVIRONMENT

PARIS: Bumblebees exposed to levels of radiation found within the Chernobyl exclusion zone suffered a "significant" drop in reproduction, in new research published on Wednesday that scientists say should prompt a rethink of calculations of nuclear environmental risk.

The study, published in the journal Proceedings of the Royal Society B, set out to discover how ionising radiation affects insects, which are often thought to be more resilient than other species.

Researchers in Scotland and Germany exposed bee colonies in a laboratory setting to a range of radiation levels found in areas of the exclusion zone around the ruined Chernobyl site, where a reactor exploded in 1986 in the world's worst nuclear disaster.

They found that colony reproduction reduced by 30 to 45 per cent at doses previously considered too low to impact insects.

"We found that at radiation levels detectable in Chernobyl, the number of new queen bees produced from the colony was significantly reduced and colony growth was delayed — meaning colonies reached their peak weight at a week later," said the paper's lead author Katherine Raines.

Solapur teacher among finalists to win $1mn prize

TECH

LONDON: A primary school teacher from a village in Maharashtra has made an entry to the list of top 10 finalists for the $1 million annual Global Teacher Prize 2020, in recognition of his efforts at promoting girls' education and triggering a quick-response (QR) coded textbook revolution in India.

Ranjitsinh Disale, 31, arrived at the Zilla Parishad Primary School in Paritewadi village in Solapur district in 2009 when it was a dilapidated building, sandwiched between a cattle-shed and a storeroom. He took on the task of turning things around and ensuring that the textbooks were available in the local language for the pupils. Disale not only translated the class textbooks into his pupils' mother tongue, but also embedded them with unique QR codes to give students access to audio poems, video lectures, stories and assignments.

The impact of his interventions has been that there are now no teenage marriages in the village and 100 per cent attendance of girls at the school.

Disale's school was the first in Maharashtra to introduce QR codes and after submitting a proposal and successful pilot scheme, the state ministry announced in 2017 that they would introduce QR coded textbooks across the state for all grades.

In 2018, the human resources development ministry announced that all the NCERT textbooks would have embedded QR codes.

Disale joins Nigeria's Olasunkanmi Opeifa, UK's Jamie Frost, Italy's Carlo Mazzone, South Africa's Mokhudu Cynthia Machaba, US' Leah Juelke and South Korea's Yun Jeonghyun as a top 10 finalist. The top three will be announced one each week in the run up to the Global Teacher Prize ceremony, which will be virtual for the very first time in its history due to the Covid-19 pandemic.

GOLD ON THE BLOCK

City-based label Abraham and Thakore's new block-printed collection, showcased on Day 1 of Lakme Fashion Week, is chic, comfortable and full of colours that are perfect for a low-key festive season

Fashion lovers, here's some good news for you. Lakme Fashion Week officially kick-started on Wednesday, after a grand digital premiere with Manish Malhotra's collection Ruhaaniyat on Tuesday. Day 1's showcase included city-based label Abraham and Thakore, who used their gold and beige collection to highlight a sustainable fashion line, filled with fun elements. "We have developed silhouettes with frills and ruffles, which soften the look and add a playful element," says Abraham, adding that they have played with a softer colour palette. "The collection is in shades of beige and sand, which are printed in gold 'kari', which is a form of pigment printing. The colours are appropriate for a low-key festive look, with the gold adding a spark," he adds.

The duo's collection came as a part of the segment All About India, where LFW (which is on till Oct. 25) is showcasing designer collaborations that revive the livelihoods of craftsmen affected by Covid-19. The segment showcased other ace designers like Rajesh Pratap Singh for Satya Paul, Anavila, Suket Dhir, Payal Khandwala and Urvashi Kaur, where they put the spotlight on Ikkat, Katwa and linen weaving, brocade, Jamdani, and Shibori, respectively.

Through their designs, the duo shine a spotlight on the traditional technique of block printing, as they explore geometric patterns with it. "Block printing is one the oldest techniques of creating patterns on cloth. We manipulated the possibilities that this technique offered us and created engineered textile patterns in very contemporary geometric forms by working with polka dots and stripes," explains Abraham.

A veteran in the field of fashion, Abraham called the digital avatar of the fashion show, "an excellent form of communication." The fashion guru adds, "Now there is a more subdued approach to fashion. People are looking for elegance but they also want comfort, ease and practicality. In other words, people want clothes that look as elegant at home as they do outside home."

DESIGNS FROM A DISTANCE

While many might miss the energy that radiates off the ramp at Lakme Fashion Week (LFW), its digital avatar does feel close to a movie. From Kartik Aaryan oozing royal glam in Manish Malhotra's collection to Gurang Shah's line, Taramati, being showcased against the backdrop of a heritage building with folk music in the background... The designers went above and beyond for their videos. They didn't have to worry about mistakes made on the ramp since each video was shot and edited to perfection. Register on LFW website to watch the shows live or check LFW's Instagram page.

When dreams touched the sky

Vidya Iyengar

When Gunjan Saxena: The Kargil Girl was released in August, Sukanya Lakshmi Narayan, daughter of Wing Commander Vijayalakshmi Ramanan (retd) was curious to know if her mother as the first woman commissioned officer faced any gender-based discrimination. "My mother recalled being treated as an equal, and was never subject to any sort of discrimination," says Sukanya, a professional counsellor.

On Sunday, Ramanan (96) passed away after having lived an eventful life. "Even until 11 days ago, she was alert and had written a note to her attending doctor. And until a few months ago, she was filing her income tax returns," shares son-in-law SVL Narayan, a retired IT professional.

Born in 1924, Ramanan pursued MBBS from Madras Medical College in 1943. Awarded the best outgoing student in 1948, she went on to do her DGO and MD in obstetrics and gynaecology, and worked at Egmore Maternity Hospital, Chennai.

In 1955, after being persuaded by her husband, K V Ramanan, who was also an IAF officer, she joined the Army Medical Core in 1955 on Short Service Commission and seconded to the Air Force as the first lady commissioned officer as gynaecologist. She was posted in the Air Force Hospitals in Kanpur, Secunderabad and Bengaluru. During the wars in 1962, 1966 and 1971, she treated wounded soldiers. In fact, they were the first couple to serve in the Air Force. However, in 1971, she lost her husband to cancer. He was 47 at the time.

She pursued her interest in Carnatic music, having learnt from eminent musicians. "She was an AIR artiste from the age of 15, and represented her college in competitions. She broadcast from Delhi, Lucknow, Secunderabad and Bangalore," says Narayan.

Ramanan was elated when one of her "interns" visited to seek her blessings a few years ago. "Padma Bandopadhyay, who went on to become the first air marshal in the Air Force was facing opposition from family when she wanted to marry her Bengali colleague. My grandparents oversaw the marriage in Secundrabad," Sukanya recalls.

KR Market and Mysuru Dasara jumbo savari come to life at this school's diorama put together by students and teachers

Monika Monalisa

Dasara celebrations are incomplete without a visit to homes of people who have set up a gombe (doll) collection. While many families have opted out of this ritual this year, the teachers and students of Bachpan Play School, RT Nagar, decided to keep the tradition alive in their own way. Haripriya Yeshvanth, director of the playschool, says the teachers, students and their parents came together to recreate miniature doll versions of the Mysuru Dasara Jumbo savari and the famous KR Market.

Besides being a fun activity, it proved to be educational too. "We used to take the students for field trips to show them where vegetables and fruits or clothes are sold, but this year we had to skip that. So by making dolls of the vendors at city market, we wanted to give children an idea of what one of the oldest markets in the city looks like," says Yeshvanth.

One look at the dolls and it's clear that Yeshvanth has not compromised on any details. For example, the coconuts used in one of the miniature stores are made out of brown clay and coconut husk, and the flowers are made out of coloured paper. "We also wanted to bring in an integration of different religions. So, in the KR Market we recreated, you will find Saifullah coconut mandi, Sri Venkateshwara Oil and also an Eden fresh fruits stall," explains Yeshvanth.

The school's students too express their excitement with the activity. Five-and-half-year-old Tina Suthar, who studies in UKG, says, "The doll KR market looked so beautiful and colourful. So I have asked my mama to make a similar one for our home too."

TIRYAK BHUJANGASANA
(TWISTING COBRA POSE)

In Sanskrit, 'tiryak' means 'oblique', 'slant' or 'transverse', 'bhujanga' means 'serpent' or 'snake', and 'asana' means 'pose'. It is good for correcting postural defects of the upper spine. There are many benefits of practising this asana. It opens up the shoulders and neck. It also tones the abdomen, strengthens the entire back and shoulders, improves flexibility of the upper and middle back, expands the chest, improves blood circulation and helps to reduce fatigue and stress. This asana is useful for people with respiratory disorders such as asthma.

STEPS

- Lie flat on your belly on the floor. Keep your legs together or you may keep them slightly apart.
- Now, bring your palms to the shoulder level and place them on the floor about 2 feet apart.
- Put pressure on the palms, inhale slowly and raise up. Your hands should be straight and your chest and head must be raised.
- While raising yourself up, turn your head over the right shoulder and look at your left heel.
- Relax your spine for a while. Now, hold the position for a few seconds. Your navel should be close to the ground.
- To release the position, bring your head forward. Then bend your elbows slightly to relax.
- Now, straighten your hands again and look over your left shoulder towards the right heel. Stay in this position for a few seconds.
- Turn your head forward and bend your elbows to relax. This is one round of this asana.

What is fitness?

GET MOVING
Shwetambari Shetty

Usually, when fitness is discussed, most people think of only a couple of the components — cardio and strength. But it's more than that. And understanding this can help you create a better workout routine for yourself.

There are two broad categories to the components of fitness: Health-based fitnes components and skill-based fitness components.

The health-based components are

- Cardiovascular endurance
- Muscular endurance
- Strength
- Flexibility
- Mobility
- Body composition

The skill-based components are:

- Speed
- Power
- Balance
- Coordination
- Agility
- Reaction time

Let's understand the health-based components in more detail:

Cardiovascular endurance

This focuses primarily on improving lung functionality, which is needed to do every activity, and also for a healthier heart. This basically helps the body do any aerobic exercise for a long period of time.

Benefits of cardiovascular endurance training:

- Makes the heart healthier
- Improves lung function
- Aids weight loss
- Enhances the mood
- Regulates blood pressure

Muscular endurance

This component measures how long a muscle is able to tolerate a high amount of work. For example, if you are able to do 25 squats in one minute, and your partner is able to do 15 squats in one minute, clearly your muscular endurance is better than your partner's. So basically, muscular endurance training helps improve the functioning of the skeletal muscles. Don't confuse it with strength training. This is simply training the muscles to handle more fatigue.

Benefits of muscular endurance training:

- Improves muscle health
- Aids fat loss
- Reduces risk of injury
- Strengthens the muscles and the bones

Strength

This measures how much force your muscle is able to exert. For example, if you are able to lift 25 kg and your partner is able to lift 35 kg, clearly your partner has more muscular strength than you. Bottom line: Muscular strength is how much can you lift and muscular endurance is how long your muscles can work without fatigue.

Benefits of strength training:

- Maintains muscle mass
- Builds muscle mass
- Maintains and improves bone health
- Aids fat loss
- Enhances the mood

Flexibility

Flexibility is a measure of the length of your muscle. Muscle has some elasticity, which is what helps you move without any pain. Lack of flexibility training can deteriorate the original length of the muscle.

Benefits of flexibility training:

- Maintains muscle length
- Improves muscle length
- Improves posture
- Reduces the chances of injuries
- Aids recovery after exercise
- Improves athletic performance

Mobility

Think of this as the range of motion of each joint. It is the ability of the ankles, knees, hips, shoulders, etc. to move as they are designed to function. Ideally, you should be able to easily and completely rotate these joints, without stiffness and pain.

Benefits of mobility training:

- Maintains joint health
- Improves joint health
- Improves posture
- Reduces chances of injuries
- Improves athletic performance

Body composition

This refers to the amount of fat mass you're storing in comparison to fat-free mass, which is made up of organs, muscles, bone, etc. A lower body-fat-mass-to-muscle-mass ratio is better for your health and will ultimately make your body appear leaner and healthier.

Benefits of a body composition analysis:

- Gives you a clear idea of what your body is made up off
- Makes you aware of the amount of fat vis-a- vis muscle
- Enables one to set clear fitness goals that help:

a) Weight loss
b) Prevention of heart disease
c) Regulation of blood pressure
d) Prevention of diabetes

The skill-based fitness components will be discussed in the next column.

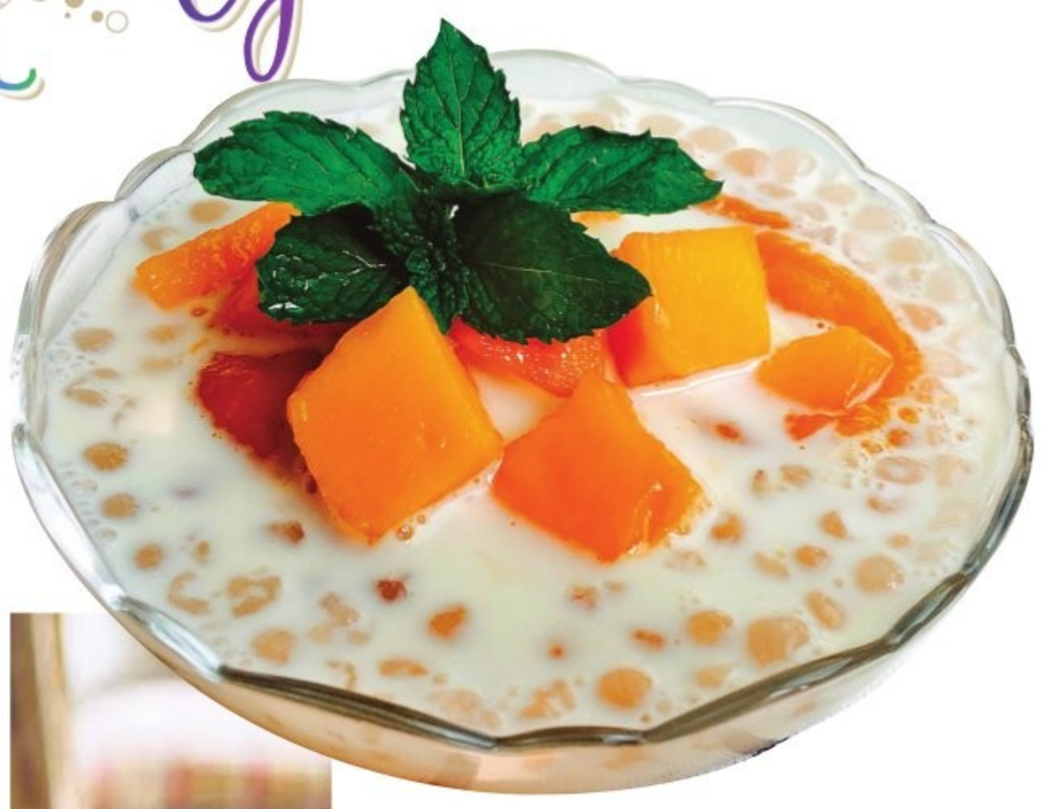
Planning to keep the Navratri fast? Keep in mind these tips while you do so

YOUR GUIDE TO FESTIVE FASTING



• Edwina Raj

The festive season is in full swing with Dussehra right around the corner. The most popular rules of Navratri fasting are to avoid wheat, rice, onion, garlic, meat, refined foods, alcohol, etc. Switching to 'vrat' foods like amaranth seeds (rajgeera), buckwheat (kattu), health grains like millets, water chestnut (singhara), sago, foxnut and fruits helps to give your gut a break before winter begins. If you have planned to keep the fast, here are some tips for you to follow:

- During fasting hours, it is necessary to sip non-calorie fluids or water throughout the day to stay hydrated. Drink fruit-infused water with a pinch of rock salt.
- You can break your fast with fruits or dry fruit initially, which provides you with quick energy from carbs. Thereby cereal, vegetables, and lentil-based light meal with curd/ buttermilk/ yogurt can be consumed to prevent fatigue or muscle loss.
- Food preparation from sago (sabudana) which is rich in carbs but low in protein is ideal to choose post fasting with a combination of lentil/ dal, vegetable and oil, or buckwheat and millets can be preferred. These prevent a surge in blood sugar levels.
- Continue to involve yourself in light physical activity rather than heavy exercise.
- If you are elderly and on medication, then consult your doctor or nutritionist before practising fasting.
- Do not indulge in heavy meals on the day of the Dussehra celebration if you have been fasting for nine days. Start with short frequent meals to prevent bloating or indigestion.
- Try some healthy festive treats along with routine preparation to bring a balance.
- Avoid consuming excess caffeinated drinks such as coffee, fizzy drinks, tea, green tea, etc. Caffeine makes you more dehydrated.
- Fasting is not meant for pregnant women, children, and those who are breastfeeding.

The author is a senior dietitian, Aster CMI Hospital.

IS FASTING HEALTHY?

The entire process behind fasting is that you are allowing the insulin levels to drop far enough and activate your body to use stored fat to burn off. Hence, fasting has benefits in treating obesity, diabetes, cardiovascular diseases, cancer and neurological disorders. But after the days of fasting, you may end up with severe bloating, nausea, overeating or an imbalance in the intake of adequate nutrients. So fasting can also carry negative implications on your health and wellbeing. Fasting may not be suitable for everyone, so check with your healthcare provider before you practise it.

VRAT FOODS TO CONSIDER

Rajgeera (amaranth seeds)
A pseudo cereal and our Indian quinoa, gluten-free rich in fibre, carbs, protein and minerals.

Kattu (buckwheat)
Gluten-free grain known for antioxidants, fibre, vitamin B and essential amino acids.

Siridhanya (millets)
Source of calcium, fibre, iron and protein

Sago (sabudana)
Carb-rich and a great source of energy

Singhara (water chestnut)
Contains 74 per cent water and is a good source of potassium and antioxidants

Foxnut (makhana)
Safe for diabetics and weight watchers

PANDEMIC AND PRO PARENTING

• Akanksha Pandey

Our restructured lives seem to be burdening different age groups with unique challenges. One such section of importance is parenting and parent-child mental health during Covid-19. Parents seem to be dealing with work from home, their child's homeschooling, and household responsibilities. These changes have resulted in stress, overload of responsibilities and disruption in work and personal life balance. Further, the necessity for parents to homeschool the child and to ensure that the child is completing the assigned work on time has turned out to be a challenge. Parenting is a full-time job with emotional aspects to it. Most efficient parenting requires calmness, kindness and respect towards the child, partnership amongst parents, and proper communication between parent-child.

Here are six strategies for effective parenting:

Identify the problem: It is essential to build an attitude of openness, consider different perspectives before concluding, focussing on the situation than the individual to understand the nature of the problem. The problems in the current situation can be due to lack of structure, social stimulation in children, and me-time. Behavioral impulsiveness is a child's way of expressing a cry for help, which demands attention.

Set house rules: While rules help in setting clear boundaries, they also encourage structure and a sense of responsibility in family members. Setting up a fixed work/ study schedule, division of responsibilities, etc., will help the child stay engaged, feel productive and confident.

Build healthy communication: Communication is not limited to saying things the right way but also ensuring that the child is feeling understood. Adopt active listening, express empathy, exhibit a non-judgmental attitude and facilitate the child's expression.

Engage in collective activities: It is natural for children to exhibit a sense of insecurity when parents are overwhelmed. Engaging in activities such as playing games together, engaging in music or art activities, watering the plants or setting the dinner table together, etc, will help the child feel safe and relaxed.

Engage in me-time to avoid over-engagement with a child: Parents should not just focus on the amount of time spent with a child, but it's the 'quality' that matters. Parents need to engage in me-time activities to relax and do things they enjoy during stressful times.

Incorporate playful parenting and learning: Playful parenting results in less nagging, reduced arguments, and less stress. Parents can incorporate playfulness during home-schooling hours or learning via adding gaming in the curriculum, learning through technology, digital and virtual learning.

The Covid-19 and stroke connection

• Dr.Venkataramana N K

The pandemic is still active and progressive in many ways. Though significant numbers have recovered, the long-term implications are yet to be understood. Viruses are small particles whose origin remains controversial, yet their ability to survive in other beings changes suitably to circumstances and ability to modify constantly makes them unique and unpredictable.

The Covid-19 infection is known to cause acute respiratory distress syndrome and a hyper immune response called cytokine storm. Recent accumulated evidence also shows that Covid-19 infection is an independent risk factor for stroke. A new onset of brain stroke is noted in 5.9 per cent of Covid patients. Among the neurological complications of Covid, stroke is the leading one by 85 per cent. Large blood vessels are affected in majority contributing to 46 per cent of the strokes. The average time of onset of stroke is 12 days from the start of the infection. Among the people who have the high risk for stroke, like those with diabetes, high blood pressure, abnormal lipids in the blood, etc, the stroke risk increases 2.5 fold. The occurrence of stroke in Covid infection increases the risk of death, ICU stay as well as ventilator assistance. Presence of active pneumonia is an added risk factor.

Presence of hypercoagulable state with an increased tendency for the blood to form a clot in these patients can explain the increased risk of strokes. Normally, clotting mechanism of the body gets activated only when needed, like in injury. Spontaneous clotting occurs in Covid infection within the blood vessels. Presence of arterial clots have been described in 3.7 per cent of patients and large vessel occlusion causing massive or multiple strokes. The inflammation associated can cause platelet aggregation as well as damage to the blood vessels, causing bleeding either in pre-existing stroke or independently. A CT scan is diagnostic of the condition. Elderly with associated risk factors for the stroke are at higher risk, and in younger individuals, Covid can be an independent risk for stroke.

Symptoms & treatment

The standard treatment for stroke and the treatment of Covid as per the current guidelines are being combined. They need intense monitoring and aggressive management. What is not clear is the preventive role of medicines used for stroke, and to whom, when and how long to administer. It is important to be vigilant and avoid infection. If it happens, early detection of any neurological symptoms like numbness, slight weakness, speech difficulty, loss of balance, persistent headache, blurred vision should be taken as warning signs. All the infected, regardless of symptoms, should be screened for the available biomarkers of stroke. This should be implemented for all ages. Those with symptoms of stroke should be admitted to a stroke centre as soon as possible.

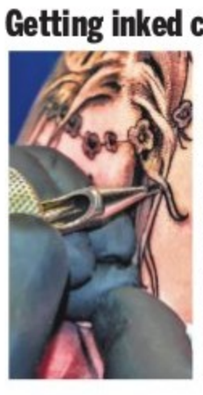
Covid vaccinations make many people anxious: Study

In a study, published in the journal 'Nature Medicine', the research team validated sample of over 13,400 individuals from 19 countries, including India, that have been hard-hit by the virus and found that 72 per cent of participants would likely take the vaccine. Of the remaining 28 per cent, 14 per cent would refuse, while 14 per cent would hesitate, which translates into tens of millions of potential vaccine avoiders. "We found that the problem of vaccine hesitancy is strongly related to a lack of trust in government," said study author said Jeffrey V. Lazarus from Barcelona Institute for Global Health (ISGlobal). - IANS

Getting inked can impair sweating



Researchers have found that tattoos may impair natural sweating, potentially causing the body to overheat if the tattoos cover a large area of the body. "Any damage to eccrine (sweat) glands within the skin can impair sweating response and potentially increase the risk of overheating if the damage covers a large enough body surface area," said study author Scott L Davis from University of Texas (UT Southwestern) in the US. Eccrine sweat glands, which are found in most skin across the body, produce sweat to cool the body. The human body must regulate its temperature for survival. - IANS

WINNING HEARTS THROUGH FOOD

Actor Aravinnd Iyer talks about his upcoming film, Bheemasena Nalamaharaja; the family drama directed by Karthik Saragur will get OTT release on Oct. 29

A Sharadhaa

A conversation about food excites actor Aravinnd Iyer, and he is living the character of a chef to the full extent in Karthik Saragur's heartwarming drama, Bheemasena Nalamaharaja. This film centers around six phases of life based on six rasas: sweet, sour, salty, bitter, pungent, and astringent. The actor, who made his silver screen debut with Kirik Party, and is awaiting the release of his web series, Hate You Romeo, will be seen as a full-fledged hero for the first time in Bheemasena...

The much-awaited film, produced by Paramvah Studios, Pushkar Films, and Lost and Found Films, will be out on Amazon Prime on Oct. 29. There has already been a lot of talk about its content, posters, music, and the latest trailer. Ahead of the film's release, the actor says that he understands that the way to win somebody's heart is through food. "But as a chef, one needs to balance the flavour with the right mix of rasas, which emulates life and relationship as well, and that's what my character does in Bheemasena...," he says.

Interestingly, cooking has been the actor's foremost passion, and with Bheemasena..., he got a chance to experience and explore the traditional cuisines and learn the history behind them. "I always enjoyed cooking. In fact, when I was pursuing my Masters in the UK, I used to cook for 4-5 people every day, and my bond with spices has been strong for a long time now. However, for the role, I had to learn some extra culinary skills, for which I visited three restaurants and took up a short training, where I learned the art of chopping onions with swiftness, making different kind of rotis, and I thoroughly enjoyed it," he tells CE.

A still from Bheemasena Nalamaharaja

Sharing some fond memories of his time during the making of Bheemasena..., he says, "It was a very challenging process. One, the film shows me in at least 10-12 different looks. Secondly, going by the film's interpretations, I had to get into Bheema's avatar and bring in Nala's characteristics/ behaviour, which was once again a task to explore it on screen."

About director Karthik Saragur, Aravinnd says, is someone who knows the Indian culture and history. "He is a talented filmmaker and somebody who admires art. His idea is to present our culture across the globe, and I am sure that viewers across age groups and borders will be able to connect with the subject. They say food can unite people, and we are happy to bring this delectable story for everybody," he adds.

The film is jointly produced by Rakshit Shetty, Pushkar Mallikarjunaiah and Hemanth M Rao, and the actor feels lucky that he has got associated with producers who understand cinema. "It was my wish that the films I get associated with the right kind of producers, and that has been the case right from my first film. I am glad to team up with producers who know the nuances of acting and direction, and have understanding of good content," he says.

Bheemasena..., which is said to be an intriguing take on family, relationships and how food is the key thing that bides them together, has music composed by Charan Raj, and cinematography by Ravindranath. It has Aravinnd sharing screen space with Achyuth Kumar, Priyanka Thimmesh, and Aarohi Narayan, among others in the cast.

Talking about how he chose to take up acting as a career, after doing his Masters in automobile engineering and working in London, Aravinnd says, "My parents didn't want to settle in London, and so I returned to India. Further, the automobile industry didn't seem promising, so I chose films as my career. While in London, I also had the opportunity to dabble in theatre, and that's the skill I bring to my acting." He is now taking it slow and steady. "I am in a position where I cannot choose all the scripts that I want until people see what I have done. My film or webseries have taken time to release. Hopefully, it will not be the case with my future projects," he says.

The actor is looking forward to Bheemasena... getting an OTT release. "Initially, the film was started for the silver screen, but it is now getting a release on the streaming platform. If it were a theatrical release, we would have got the instant audience reaction, which is not possible now. However, the reach through OTT is far and wide, and ultimately our goal is taking Bheemasena... to as many viewers as possible," he says.

Aravinnd is currently also in talks for two new projects. "One is based on the underworld, while the other is outright comedy. Both the films are under preparation work, and an official announcement from the team will be made soon," he says.

FAST & FURIOUS TO END WITH A TWO-PART FILM

A still from the film

CE Features

Fast & Furious, one of the most popular movie franchises, might end with a two-part movie, tentatively titled as Fast 10 and Fast 11.

According to Deadline, director Justin Lin is returning to direct the last two installments.

The 9th installment of the franchise, F9 was slated to release earlier this year, but it was delayed until 2021 due to COVID-19 pandemic. The film is set to include some big developments, such as John Cena playing Dominic Toretto's brother, and will include Han's return.

While, Fast 10 had a 2021 release date previously, it is now left without one due to F9's delay. The cast is not confirmed for either of the two movies, although the prominent cast members like Diesel, Michelle Rodriguez, Tyrese Gibson, and Ludacris are all expected to appear. Reports also suggest that veteran franchise writer Chris Morgan is expected to write both scripts.

Actor Vin Diesel had also previously teased that Fast 10 could become two movies. With this announcement, Fast & Furious will become the latest franchise to have a two-part culminating story. Other movie franchises like The Hunger Games and Harry Potter ended their final book for two-part movies, while Avengers: Infinity War and Avengers: Endgame served as two-part concluding films to MCU Phase 3.

The long awaiting 3rd installment of Legally Blonde is all set to release in May 2022. MGM Studios announced the news on Twitter with a gif of Reese Witherspoon as Elle Woods.

"Elle Woods is back! Legally Blonde 3 coming May 2022. We rest our case," read the tweet. Earlier reports initially suggested Reese Witherspoon's return for Legally Blonde 3, however, plot details were slim, and it was reported that the original Legally Blonde writers Kirsten "Kiwi" Smith and Karen McCullah were set to return. The film was given a 2020 release. However, there were few developments beyond that, and the film got a major boost this year when Mindy Kaling and Dan Goor were brought in to write the script.

It's almost like slavery time", says Fox Rich aka Sibil Fox Richardson in Garrett Bradley's Time, the Sundance winner of US Documentary Directing award, now streaming on Amazon Prime Video. "The white man keeps you there till he figures out your time is up". Time is a documentary on Fox Rich's family and her struggle to secure the release of her incarcerated husband, who was sentenced to 60 years in prison without parole or suspension of sentence and without benefits, for an attempted bank robbery in 1999. Over time, Fox becomes a figure fighting illegal incarceration of poor people and people of colour in America. True to its title, Time plays fast and loose with the concept of time as it switches between Bradley's documentary and home videos of Fox's family of five kids. The home video footage that spans across nineteen years was handed to Bradley after she had finished filming her documentary, which was initially planned as a short. And that forced Bradley into reinventing reportage design that would work for Time, combining her film with Fox's home videos, resulting in breathtaking formal precision, making it a one-of-a-kind documentary where moments pass like years and years pass like moments. Time is in black and white and is shot and edited in a way that the home videos and Bradley's film don't create a dissonance but add incredible amount of value to each other, despite being years apart.

What we get is a documentary combining Asif Kapadia-like piecing together of personal history and Bradley's lens on Fox's latter day efforts and frustration with courts and judges, not to mention Fox's own journey as a woman who is deeply aware that life goes on, with her focus on her career and her five children's education. We switch back and forth—Fox getting ready for work or getting ready to meet her husband in prison. We get several shots of her conversation with the judge's office where she gets the same answer every time. Bradley also shoots this in a way that Fox doesn't betray any scepticism towards these difficult calls; she remains as hopeful as she was ten years ago. She talks about how every year the family feels like this will be the New Year's Eve they will have their father home. While in prison, she has her twins, and names them Justus and Freedom, an eternal memory of the circumstances in which they stepped into this world and what they, as a family, must fight to obtain in America, against Louisiana's harsh prison and justice system. A snatch of a conversation is captured about the prison budget cuts that could help their goal, but we learn how that never happens, doesn't happen after ravaging floods or hurricane Katrina but cuts repeatedly occur with education and healthcare.

From that conversation Bradley transitions to a different time, showing a washing machine spinning as the film moves to Freedom talking about his graduation from high school. He mentions how children of incarcerated parents seldom graduate high school which he has done two years early and how much that means to him and others like him. He talks about his chosen major—political science—because if one must transform the criminal justice system into a more forgiving system then one must understand how it operates. Bradley's achievement is making time feel at once like a constant and also an ever moving object in her documentary where Fox Rich, as iconic a role model as any, transforms her family into a successful, well-educated group of individuals, who begin to think and speak for the larger good of black American lives. Only the aspect ratio might give it away but the Fox Rich we see on home video, giving talks to her community is no different from the older Fox Rich that Bradley has shot, giving similar talks about America's justice system. While her sons grow up to be adults and high schoolers matured and self-aware beyond their age, Fox is always the same woman, ready for this battle, always knowing in her bones that the system in the country is rotten and her fight will be a long and hard one. It's not a coincidence that she happened to have nineteen years of home video to hand to Garrett Bradley. The promising young filmmaker blends them into her spectacular documentation of another facet of black life in America that exists to this day.
